WILMINGTON—That 2013 has been a whirlwind of a year is an understatement. We've seen beginnings and endings, winners and losses. And, of course, we knew tragedy.

Hockey Wins State Championship

Wilmington Hockey won the state championship for the second year in a row. On a Sunday afternoon in March at TD Garden before 3,500 fans, the Wildcats responded to one last challenge and they did so in spectacular fashion, with a 4-0 victory over Franklin in a rematch of last season's title game won by Wilmington 3-2. In winning their second consecutive Division 2 crown, the Wildcats wrapped up an amazing season and became the first Division 2 repeat champion since Saugus back in 2003 and 2004.

Churches Vandalized

In February, three local churches were victims of vandals. St. Thomas of Villanova, St. Dorothy's Church, and the Congregational Church in Wilmington were each spray-painted with red paint and the words 'brainwashing' and images of televisions with brains inside them. St. Thomas of Villanova's structure sustained the most damage, with thirty steps being painted, along with doors and a statue. But they were cleaned, and the community came together on the common in order to show support for the faithful. The vandals also hit a dry-cleaning business on Middlesex Avenue during that weekend.

Sean Collier

Sean Collier, a Wilmington native, will be long remembered both here and across Massachusetts after the events that followed the Boston Marathon Bombing. He was murdered on April 18, allegedly by the Tsarnaev Brothers, Dzhokhar and Tamerlan, as they began their rampage through Watertown and Cambridge that followed their terrorist attack on the Boston Marathon. Collier, a 2004 graduate of Wilmington High School, was well-liked by his peers and fellow policemen. And you could tell: his memorial ceremony, which was held in town, attracted thousands of people outside Wilmington, including national media. MIT, the university at which he worked, announced that it will start a scholarship in his honor. Wilmington will build a memorial for him at the new High School.

New High School

Finally, Wilmington began construction on its new high school after a long delay. A group of ten residents fought the school on the grounds that its construction would be harmful to the environment. However, the state ultimately ruled in favor of the town, and, as such, crews broke ground back in May. The new WHS is slated to be finished in February 2015.

Wilmington Political Preview

Four seats up for re-election

By JON BISHOP
Town Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON— Believe it or not, Town elections are just around the corner. So, the Crier has put together a preview for Wilmington voters.

It'll be a slow cycle this year.

Michael McCoy and Judith O'Connell both may seek re-election for the Board of Selectmen. McCoy, a local business owner, has been a member of the Board for about twenty-three years and currently serves as Chairman.

O'Connell, a local realtor, was elected to her first term in 2011. She has previously served on the School Committee. In 2011, McCoy topped the ticket and O'Connell defeated three-term incumbent Ray Lepore.

The School Committee also has two open seats. Leslee Quick, currently serving her second term, is up for reelection along with Ginny Bonish, completing her first term.

Neither the Housing Authority nor Shawsheen Tech School Committee has open seats.

Town Clerk Sharon George will have nominations papers available on January 2. Candidates must collect 50 verified signatures. Papers are due back to the Town Clerk by 5:00 pm Friday, March 7.

Tom & Jonathan Dalton and Matthew Steinmetz hung out together at the Wilmington Memorial Library for the "all you can read buffet" on Monday. This popular event is back! Kids in grades 3, 4 and 5 were invited to this marathon read and eat-in. Kids brought something comfortable to lounge upon, and spent the afternoon reading and munching on yummy snacks and beverages. The event ended with a pizza party. (photo by Maureen Brady-www.shootingstarspix.com)

A message from
RMLD's General Manager

Electricity rates to rise

READING, December 23, 2013 - Wilmington residents may want to turn off a few more lights this year, as the local electricity provider is seeking a rate hike to cover inaccurate projections in its 2014 budget.

In a statement to the press, Reading Municipal Light Department's (RMLD) General Manager Coleen O'Brien presented the necessity for a rate increase to the RMLD Board. Ms. O'Brien has addressed concerns in the following message:

"RMLD is seeking an approximate 5 percent increase to the overall bill. This increase equates to 9 percent of the customer and base energy charges on the residential bill, and the customer, base energy, and demand charges on the commercial/industrial bill.

"The kWhr sales projections over the last several years assumed unrealistic load growth assumptions, which were not adjusted for the FY 2014 budget. These assumptions supported increased base revenues to cover expenses, including the four town payments, and the annual Reading payment in-lieu-of tax (PILOT) which was approximately $2.3 million.

"Massachusetts General Law, Section 58, does not allow RMLD to have rates that are below production costs. Pursuant to Department of Public Utilities, 85-121, RMLD's voluntary PILOT to the Town of Reading must come from net income. A net loss adversely impacts RMLD's ability to make its payment commitments and increases RMLD's credit risk in qualifying for low cost contracts with power suppliers.

"RMLD was in a transition phase during the FY 2014 budget process with an Interim General Manager performing two critical job functions and the RMLD continuing its search for a General Manager. The necessity of the rate increase is a result of a recent diligent review of the budget to actual financials. It is with fiduciary duty that this issue must be addressed proactively; delays only compound the revenue issue to ensure solid financial positioning by the end of the fiscal year.

"RMLD has not had a rate increase or an updated Cost of Service Study in over three and a half years. RMLD is developing a long term Strategic Plan which focuses on reliability, rates, staffing and process efficiencies. An RMLD Cost of Service Study model is currently being developed and its resultant study findings and six year projections will be completed and presented this spring.

"Moving forward, the economy combined with the forecasted energy hikes due to transmission and capacity over the next couple of years, will keep electric bill topics in the press for both the municipals and investor-owned utilities alike. RMLD is a not-for-profit municipal and will, with due diligence, remain with rates amongst the lowest in the state.

Presentations to the RMLD Board of Commissioners and the Citizens Advisory Board are scheduled for January.

Special Delivery and Recognition Marks Last Day Winchester Hospital Obstetrics Nurse Kathy Savosik Retires after 38 years

WINCHESTER- The first time Kathy Savosik stepped into a labor and delivery room she was terrified. She had seen videos in nursing school of what to expect, but when that expectant mother walked through the door she started to wonder what she got herself into.

Savosik, a Wilmington resident, helped deliver that first baby without a problem and she liked it so much she delivered thousands more over her 38-year career. The longtime Winchester Hospital nurse retired in November, welcoming her last newborn, a boy, into the world on Nov. 11.

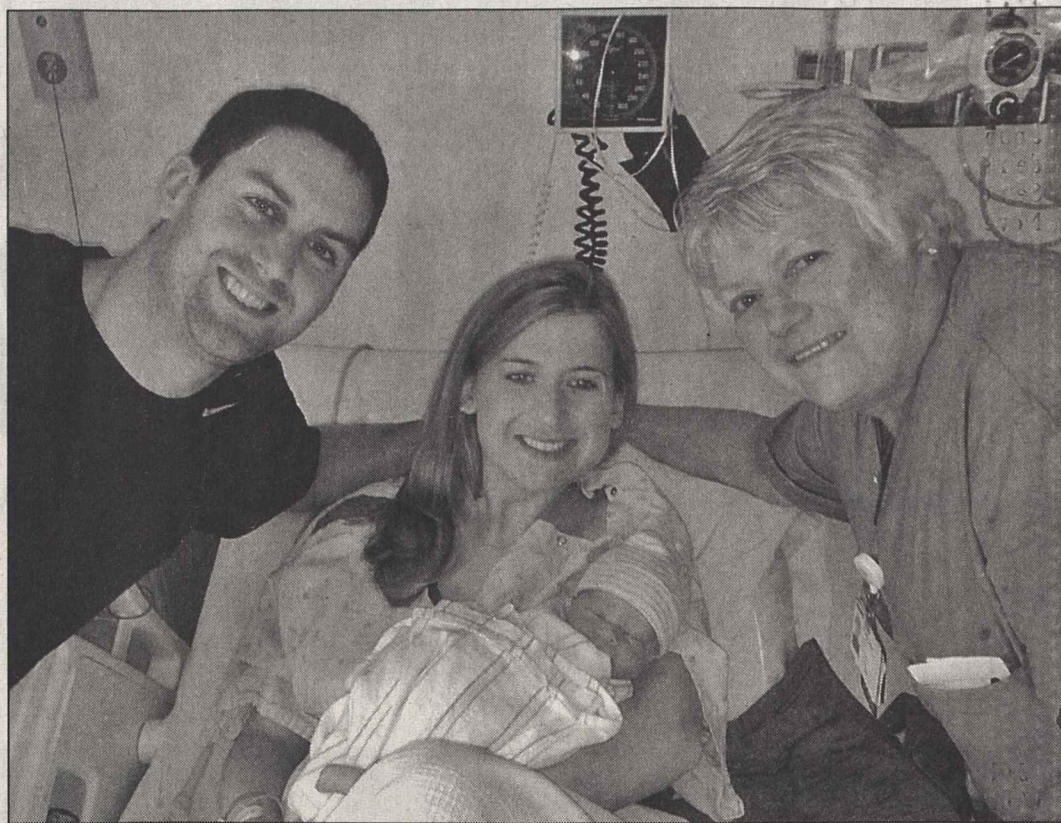

"It was always exciting and joyful to see a new baby born," Savosik said. "I think I'll miss that the most. I never knew when a delivery was going to occur or how many patients I was going to see in a day."

In her nearly four decade career, Savosik has seen maternity trends come and go - from mothers being completely medicated to the natural birth phase to epidurals and comfort measures to the increasing use of therapeutic tubs. But the one constant has always been Winchester Hospital and her colleagues in the Labor & Delivery unit.

"I had the good fortune of working with an amazing group of people," Savosik said. "I don't know if I would have stayed all those years if it wasn't such a wonderful place to work."

Through the years, Savosik has become known for her calming effect on patients, and her final patient - Kristin Veillette - made a point to thank Savosik for all she did during her delivery.

"She was very professional and a great coach in the delivery room," the new mother said. "Being a first time mom I was pretty nervous, but Kathy was able to calm me down."

Savosik was honored recently by her colleagues at the Woburn Country Club for her years of service to the hospital. She was also recognized with a Grateful Patient gift, which allows patients or family members to honor caregivers who have gone above and beyond in their care. To find out more about the Grateful Patient Program, you can email foundation@win-hosp.org.

"We were very lucky to have someone as compassionate, caring and talented as Kathy in our department for so long," said Sue Petrosino, nurse manager of Winchester Hospital's Labor & Delivery. "She was an excellent caregiver to patients and will be greatly missed."

About Winchester Hospital Winchester Hospital delivers nearly 2,000 babies each year and offers education and support services that provide mothers and babies with the specialized care they need before, during and after pregnancy and birth. Winchester Hospital is the first hospital in Massachusetts to earn Magnet® recognition, the American Nurses Credentialing Center's highest honor for nursing excellence, three times. As the northwest suburban Boston area's leading provider of comprehensive health care services, the 229-bed facility provides care in general, bariatric and vascular surgery, orthopedics, cardiology, pulmonary medicine, oncology, radiation oncology, gastroenterology, urology, gynecologic urology, rehabilitation, pain management, obstetrics/gynecology, pediatrics and a Level IIB Special Care Nursery. THE WORST TAX SCAMS

Each year the IRS lists the worst tax scams. Here are some:

- Identity theft tops the list, often used to file fake claims for fraudulent refunds. Get IRS help at 800-908-4490.
- Fake charities solicit money after natural disasters.
- Phishing attempts to get personal financial information via e-mail purporting to come from the IRS or banks.

• Fake tax preparers may promise extra-large refunds. Beware any preparer who does not sign your return or include his or her PTIN.

• Hiding income offshore to evade U.S. taxes is becoming more difficult as the IRS is getting tougher.

• False or inflated income and expenses to maximize refundable credits. Phony Form 1099 refund claims, too.

• Scams that offer "free money" from the IRS and Social Security.

• Use of shell companies to underreport income, claim phony deductions and other financial crimes.

Shawsheen Tech has announced that local students have been named as Seniors of the Month for November.

Jillian Davidson

Jillian Davidson of Wilmington and Devon King of Tewksbury were named Shawsheen Valley Technical High School's Seniors of the Month for November.

Davidson is studying health assisting at Shawsheen and is one of the student body's most well-rounded students.

Along with being ranked in the top ten academically, Jillian has a variety of interests. She has volunteered at the Wilmington Senior Center and assisted with the Kristen Corbett 5K Run/Walk to End Alzheimers in Billerica. The event is in memory of a former Shawsheen student-athlete.

Davidson has also been a day camp counselor during the summer.

At Shawsheen, she's a lot more than an honor-roll student and a National Honor Society member.

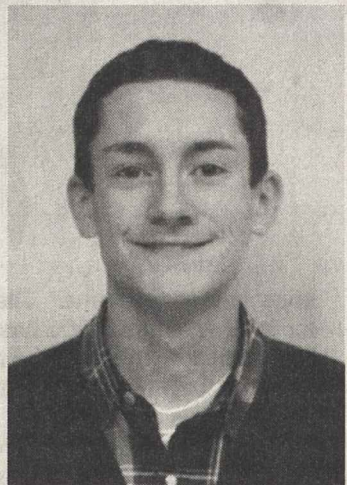

Davidson has been active in SkillsUSA for the past three years, winning a silver medal at the state competition last year as a junior. She's also a member of Shawsheen's Outdoor Club and the Teen Dating Violence Awareness group. She is planning on attending a four-year college to further her education.

Devon King

King is a drafting student and is ranked sixth academically in the senior class.

He is no stranger to success in the class. He is a National Honor Society member and an honor-roll student that has earned multiple citizenship awards. He plans to continue his education in college next fall.

Devon King

When he's not in class, King can be found in a variety of places. He has been a member of the Science Club at Shawsheen and the school's Teen Dating Violence Awareness group. He is also a past member of the Ram track and field program.

When school is out, King has volunteered for the Tewksbury Public Library and is also a Boy Scout. He's currently a candidate for the prestigious title of Eagle Scout.

King has a few interesting hobbies as well such as collecting record albums and antiques.

Snow Tips for the next storm

Battling snow and ice can be a dangerous business. Take care to stay safe this winter with these tips.

Be careful out there says SIMA, the North America nonprofit trade organization representing the snow removal industry. To get home or to the mall safely, SIMA has these tips:

TIP #1: Check weather reports. Before venturing out to the local shopping center or mall, check the weather report. If it already has started to sleet or snow, listen to the news to hear about your local road conditions before leaving your home. If the roads are hazardous, consider staying home.

Tip #2: Snow removal may not begin immediately. Severe storms or blizzards will often limit or slow snow removal efforts. Be prepared to trudge through an unplowed parking lot or street with the proper footwear such as all-weather or snow boots with good traction and by layering your winter clothing with materials that repel moisture and wick away perspiration.

TIP #3: Understand the hazards of walking on snow or ice. Even in the most manicured shopping environments the snow often falls faster than the snow removal professionals can take it away. Therefore, sidewalks, walkways, steps and parking lots around stores may not be completely free of snow and ice. Keep vigilant when walking during or after a snow event. Be especially careful when transferring your weight from the sidewalk to the curb, particularly when carrying packages or small children. Extra weight in your arms can alter your center of gravity and affect your balance leading to a higher probability of a fall.

TIP #4: Carefully enter and exit parking lots. Entering and exiting parking lot spaces create hazards even under normal weather conditions. But when the parking lot is covered in snow, it's even more dangerous. Piles of parking lot snow often create smaller parking spaces and barriers that are difficult to see around. Watch for pedestrians and snow removal equipment when you are driving in a parking lot. When walking in a parking lot, watch for vehicles that may be out of control or drivers that don't see you.

TIP #5: Avoid getting behind snow removal equipment. Good snow removal equipment has strong lights but even so, never get behind moving snow removal equipment, especially if the truck is spreading salt or other materials designed to melt snow and ice.

Following these tips will help ensure that you survive the winter safely on the road.

New Year's Not-So-Resolutions

This year folks seem more reluctant than ever to make resolutions. Perhaps because all too often resolve doesn't last long and promises we make to ourselves are broken.

But unless your recent years have gone perfectly, there may be some changes you wish to make - or retain - as you go forward into 2014. I know I have more than a few ways to self-improve, and New Year's is perfect because, for the procrastinators among us, the deadline is an ideal motivator. Sort of.

Keep in mind that the way in which we make resolutions makes all the difference.

'I want to lose 25 pounds' is not a resolution, but a goal.

Resolve, instead, to find the way in which to achieve that goal.

'I want to eat better every day and exercise at least thirty minutes five times a week,' is measurable.

Then, add accountability. We break promises to ourselves all the time because it's easy. This year, join a group or find a friend that will help keep you on track toward your goal, whatever it is.

Finally, try not to make conflicting resolutions. 'I want to wear sweatpants more' is only useful if wearing them to workout. Wearing them for shopping, lunch dates, and church are bonuses. If they're the only thing that fit...that's counterproductive.

tive (but comfy!).

I've made many resolutions - kept a few, tossed some out with prejudice, and forgotten about even more. This year, though, I've taken stock and have a few to share.

Goal: Run a 10K

Plan of Action: Join with friends on 10K training, exercise regularly, and write it all down.

Goal: Read the Bible in a year

Plan of Action: Joined a group at my Church with a reading plan and regular meetings.

Goal: Read more books - and good ones.

Plan of Action: Joined the 50-book challenge at local library. I think I can do a book a week (ok, maybe a few trashy novels...).

Goal: Spend more time with family

Plan of Action: Renewed membership to Museum of Science, learn how to construct Lego's, make cookies, play in the snow.

Goal: Surprise myself

Plan of Action: take opportunities, make opportunities - try new things.

Maybe I'll set a few new resolutions. Whatever resolutions you may, or may not make, may 2014 bring health, wealth, and happiness into your home.

Is it over yet?

by Scott Mullooney

2013 was a year of transition in many ways. And it flew by quickly. My family's non-stop schedule was cranked up to maximum speed. We didn't even have time to look back as the new year arrived.

My son Joe spent most of his time planning his January 2014 wedding. With only two weeks left before the event, it's crunch time. My son spent the last year trying to find work, trying to find a place to live, and trying to find a moment of free time in the midst of all his personal chaos. I explained to him this is how his life will be from now on. The luxury of free time is consumed by the realities of adulthood. This is why I recently became a football fan. For three hours on Sunday afternoons, I can unwind, and concentrate on nothing but first downs (and hoping the television cameras focus on Bob Kraft and his girlfriend Ricki Lander in the stands. Watching this odd couple pretend not to be with each other is as much fun as watching the game.

However, there was no spare time on my son's schedule in 2013. He found out the hard way that jobs and condos can fall through even though they look like sure bets. I am happy to say after the wedding Joe and his fiancée will be living in their own place, and not in my spare room which I had to offer as a Plan B to relieve some pressure off their shoulders. After their third condo was approved and fell through - three home inspections later and lots of money out the window - I was beginning to think they would never find a place to live. But just in the nick of time, the fourth time was a charm. This time the only scary part was the phone call from Furniture World in Stoneham Square telling them their four rooms of furniture were ready to be delivered - before they even had a key to the condo. I crossed my fingers, held my breath and said some prayers that everything would be approved and signed in time. Never underestimate the power of prayer. It worked for me.

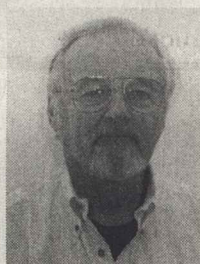

While all of this was unfolding, my younger son was experiencing his final year of Stoneham High School. Of course, his early acceptance to Berklee College of Music overshadowed everything else he was doing this year (although appearing as a chosen member of the court of the high school's Carnival Ball ranked a close second). I was pleased his last year of high school ended on a high note. His graduation was such a monumental event given the circumstances of his roller-coaster educational career. I'll miss those parent-teachers conferences where Max would tell me, "I want to learn, but the teachers don't know how to teach me." Thank God for music. Max's love for improvisational jazz has kept him grounded and given him a purpose in life. If the next four years of college don't wipe us out financially, he should enjoy a rewarding career in his chosen field.

Meanwhile as the year progressed, my wife was in and out of the hospital with symptoms caused by her atrial fibrillation, a condition that causes fluctuating heart rates. This condition is exhausting to your body as your heart starts and stops and your pulse races and slows down, wreaking havoc with your system. When her symptoms persisted after the first operation, the doctor at Mass General nonchalantly told us, "Sometimes you have to have the procedure done two or three times before it takes effect." I never thought going into the hospital for a heart procedure could become routine, but my wife is unfazed by it. On the down side, I get no sympathy when I complain about my aching joints. I do get a heartfelt, "Seriously?" from her. Now that's love.

My family is eagerly awaiting the arrival of 2014. Or rather, we are looking forward to putting the whirlwind events of 2013 behind us. I am ready to embark on a year of cleaning house, getting my important papers in order and reorganizing my schedule to include some much needed rest and relaxation. That is, if I survive my son's upcoming bachelor party. Something tells me you'll be reading about that event here. I already have my working title, "Hangover 4". Happy New Year everyone!

She Knew I Would Make It

by Donald Kaul

Every Christmas season brings me back to a decisive moment in my career.

After Peter O'Toole died in December, The New York Times gave him a worthy sendoff. The marvelous English actor's obituary, which began on the front page, ran several thousand words.

At the conclusion of its online version the Times ran this addendum:

"An earlier version of a slide show caption with this article misstated the title of release date of one of the films in which Peter O'Toole starred. It was 'How to Steal a Million,' not 'How to Steal a Million Dollars,' and it was released in 1966, not 1965."

Then:
"An earlier version of this obituary misstated the number of times Mr. O'Toole had been unsuccessfully nominated for an acting Oscar in 2003, when he received his honorary award. At that time, he had been nominated seven times; his eighth unsuccessful nomination came in 2007."

And then:
"An earlier version also stated in error that he ended his honorary Oscar acceptance speech with the words, 'Always a bridesmaid, never a bride - my foot.' He began the speech with those words."

And:
"It also misspelled the name of the film actor Errol Flynn; it is Errol, not Erroll. It also misspelled the name of the director of the 2004 film 'Troy.' He is Wolfgang Petersen, not Peterson."

That's a masterpiece of deadpan contrition - an admission of error without the slightest suggestion of apology. It reminds me of a Christmas season 50 years ago when I was a young reporter for the now-defunct Des Moines Tribune.

I wasn't doing well. It seems I was having trouble mastering certain journalistic principles - like getting names and addresses right.

So this particular Christmas I was assigned to the journalistic equivalent of Hell - the Christmas beat, all treacle and sentimental claptrap.

On Monday, I was sent to a local department store where they were giving a party and presents to poor kids from around the city. A sure winner.

I wrote it pretty well, except for the fact that somewhere along the way I switched the quotes of the store manager with the cab driver who'd driven me over. The cab driver complained. Not a good thing.

Later that week I was sent to cover a fire in which a Christmas tree and all the presents of the four children of the house had been destroyed.

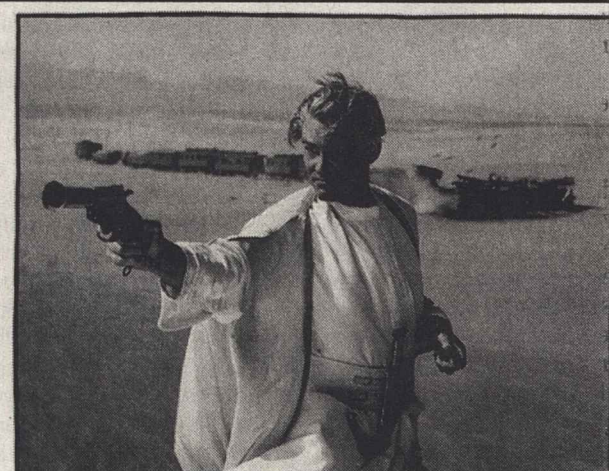

To an old-fashioned newspaper, a story like that was solid gold. Not only did it thrum heartstrings, it gave the paper a chance to call on the generosity of readers to send in money and toys for the children, making the paper seem generous at practically no cost. Win-win.

Except that I used one name for the father in the body of the story and an entirely different one in the caption under the accompanying photo. And the address I listed turned out to be near miss, rather than a direct hit.

I'd saved the best for last, however, confusing a manger scene, a contestant in the Chamber of Commerce Christmas contest, with a picture of Santa on a roof. (Don't ask how.)

By which point it was Christmas Eve. My city editor came over and said: "You know Kaul, I don't think you're going to make it." And then, with exquisite cruelty: "Oh, it's Christmas Eve. Go home and enjoy yourself."

I was 27 years old. I had a wife, two kids, and I'd just signed a lease on my house. I went home, sat in front of the fireplace, and didn't move - for a long time.

Finally my wife said: "What's wrong?"
"The city editor told me I'm not going to make it," I said.
Her response was instantaneous. "Oh, what does he know? He looks as though his mother dresses him. You're going to make it."

It's at times like that when you know you've married the right person. And for the past five decades, in good times and bad, that person, that moment, has been the light on my personal Christmas tree.

Favorite Books of 2013

BY MARISSA SZUMOWSKI,

Adult Services Librarian, Wilmington Memorial Library

As an avid reader, I enjoy this time of the year and not just because of the holidays; I absolutely love year-end best-of book lists. They're a nice reminder of what was released during the year and a chance to see anything I might have missed. It's tempting to try to read everything that passes by me at the library, but I tend to stick to books that fall into my reading preferences. Before becoming a librarian and learning about readers advisory services, I didn't think about why I was drawn to certain books over others. Taking a look at some of my favorite books, I can see some commonalities: suspenseful, descriptive, witty, dystopian, thought-provoking, compelling, disturbing, and intricately plotted. If you would like some help figuring out your reading preferences or are just looking for a good book, please stop by, give me a call, or send an email (mszumowski@mvlc.org). I would love to help you create your reading profile and lead you to some good reads for 2014. Now, here are a few of my five favorite reads of 2013.

Wool

by Hugh Howey

In this post-apocalyptic story, a polluted and hazardous landscape has forced survivors to live in a giant silo underground. Everyone is assigned an occupation and rules are taken very seriously. Sheriff Holston has followed Silo 18's regulations for years, until one day he decides to break the biggest rule of all: he asks to go outside. His decision causes Silo 18's inhabitants to rebel and question the society they've been living in.

The Dinner

by Herman Koch

Called "a European Gone Girl" by The Wall Street Journal, The Dinner is a suspenseful and disturbing story of just how far two couples are willing to go to protect their children. Brothers Paul, an unemployed teacher, and Serge, a rising political star, meet for dinner along with their respective spouses, Claire and Babette, on a summer night in Amsterdam to discuss the fate of their teenage sons. The two boys are united by their responsibility for an atrocious and violent act which has prompted a police investigation. None of the characters are likable, but that won't stop you from turning the pages and thinking about this chilling novel long after you've finished reading it.

Wilmington Senior Notes

Saying Thanks

WILMINGTON - The Department of Elderly Services would like to say "Thank You" to the Annual Fair Committee lead by Audrey Reed, public relations leader Gail Protopapas and Mary D'eon kitchen coordination, along with the many volunteers that helped make this year's fair such a success.

This year we had wonderful crafters, food, and unbelievable raffle prizes, along with the best White Elephant room in town. We would like to thank the many businesses that donated to make our day such a success: Harrow's Pot Pies, As Good As It Get's, Market Basket, Elias Country Store, 99 Restaurant, Kitty's Restaurant, T4 Nails & Spa, Cappellini's, Sunrise Bagels, Candlewood Lanes, Great American Tavern, Pacific Grove, and Pizza Mia/Uptown Deli.

Thank you to everyone that helped support the fair and make it such a success!

The Department would also like to thank the many students that helped rake a number of yards for elders in the community. This year there were two groups that volunteered their Saturdays and holidays to perform such a needed task - they were The St. Thomas's Confirmation Group and the Rotary Interact Club. Again, thank you for your time and support along with being great role models for the community.

The Department of Elderly Services would like to extend a big thanks to the Kiwanis Club for once again hosting a holiday luncheon on Sunday, December 15, 2013 at the Buzzell Senior Center. It is a great way to kick off the holiday season with good food and great friends. Thank you again!

On Tuesday, December 31, 2013 from 11:00AM - 2:00PM, we will be celebrating the end of 2013 and getting ready to ring in the New Year. Come get yourself in the holiday spirit with refreshments and drinks. Please sign up at the Buzzell Senior Center or call 978-657-7595 to ensure there will be enough treats for everyone.

Night Film

by Marisha Pessl

Fans of Stephen King will be intrigued by this haunting psychological thriller. Scott McGrath is an investigative reporter who lost his credibility while researching iconic and reclusive horror film director Stanislas Cordova. Five years later, McGrath becomes obsessed with the mysterious death of Cordova's daughter, Ashley. Though her death is ruled a suicide, McGrath is not convinced, and explores the strange circumstances surrounding Ashley's life and death along with the aid of two strangers and fellow Cordova fans. This novel is full of so many twists that I'm not completely sure what happened at the end, but it was still a great read.

Eleanor & Park

by Rainbow Rowell

Set in a high school in Omaha in 1986, Eleanor & Park is a story about the romance between two misfits. Eleanor is a new girl at school, dresses weird, and has a difficult home life. Park is the only Asian kid in the whole school, a music fanatic, and has a loving family. Initially bonding over music and comic books, Park attempts to protect Eleanor from being bullied by classmates and emotional abuse from her step-father. If you want to relive the feelings of first love and remember what it's like to be a teenager, read this book.

William C. Helliesen

WWII Marine Corps Veteran; active member of Fortnightly; loved traveling

READING - William C. Helliesen (Bill), 87, longtime resident of Reading, MA, passed away suddenly on December 25 while at his son's home celebrating Christmas. He was the devoted husband of Barbara P. (Powers) Helliesen who died in October of 1996.

Born in Brooklyn, NY on January 8, 1926, Bill was the youngest of 11 children of the late Haakon "Harry" and Gertrude (Byers) Helliesen.

His high school years were interrupted by World War II when, even though underage, he enlisted in the United States Marine Corp. He served proudly on the USS Wyoming and was honorably discharged at war's end. Using the GI Bill he trained as a carpenter completing the apprentice and journeyman programs and becoming a construction carpenter. While working for different contractors he built many homes in Metro North area of Boston. In 1967 he went to work for the Gillette Safety Razor Company in South Boston. Over time he became the manager of both the carpenter and paint shops, a position he held until his retirement.

While in the Marines and on leave in Boston he met Barbara Powers and, two weeks later and with $72 in his pocket, the two were married. Over the years the two lived in several homes in the Stoneham and Reading area, moving to this current home in 1969.

Bill and Barbara had five children, the youngest of whom was born with Downs Syndrome. Bill became an advocate for the Developmentally Delayed and was very active in the East Middlesex Association for Retarded Children (EMARC) serving as its president from 1970 - 1972. During this time he testified before the State during the development of Chapter 766, the first comprehensive special education law in the country. He continued his involvement through the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health and Retardation helping to acquire equipment for sheltered workshops as well as providing oversight for state programs.

Bill was an active member of All Saints Episcopal Church in Stoneham, MA. He ran the Sunday School programs for many years, was an active member of Fortnightly, and served several terms on the vestry and as warden. In recent years he worshiped at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Reading and carried his faith with him.

Bill loved to socialize and walk and he combined these in his daily strolls through his neighborhood. His neighbors threw him a surprise 80th birthday party which he always fondly remembered. Quick with a joke and a story he shared many dinners with "the young marrieds" and their families. He loved to travel and crisscrossed much of our country by car and by plane. Trips to visit grandchildren in Dallas and California and siblings, nephews and nieces were always on his to do list. If he wasn't on a trip he was planning his next one.

In addition to his wife, Bill was predeceased by his oldest son, William James Helliesen in June of 1983. He is survived by his daughter, Tricia Patterson-Wilson and her husband Jeff of Riverside, CA; his daughter, Karen Furtado and her husband Joseph of Tewksbury, MA; his son Walter Helliesen, and his wife Lyn of Exeter, NH; and his son Theodore (Ted) Helliesen of

Trip Report

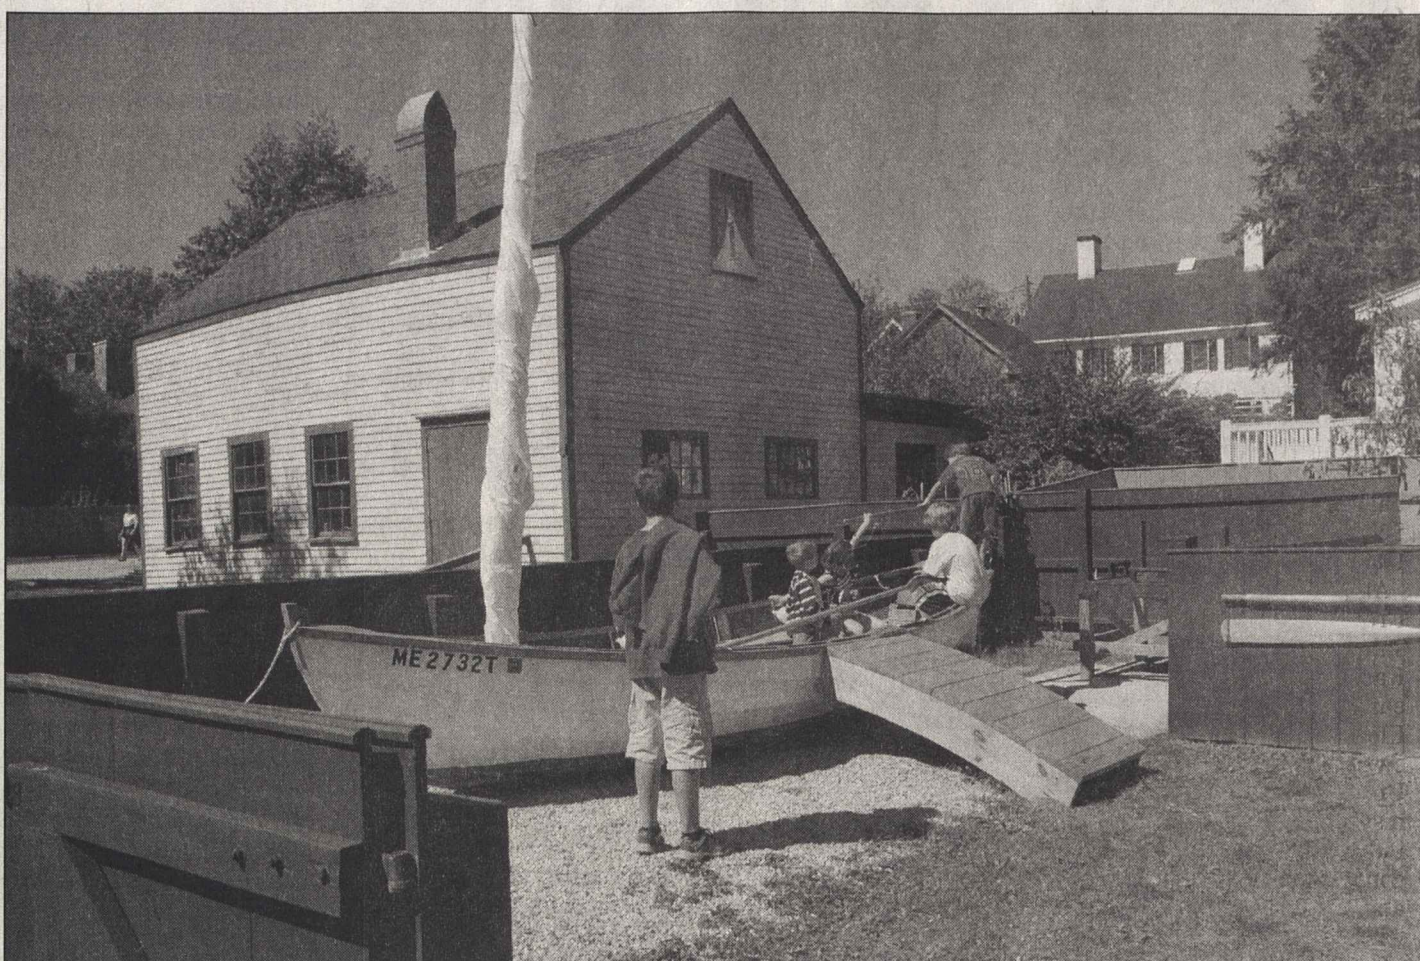

Strawberry Banke & Portsmouth, New Hampshire

By Paige Impink
Special to the Town Crier

The Piscataqua River sparkles on a crisp autumn day. Portsmouth, New Hampshire's Strawberry Banke, Peirce Island and Prescott Park offer a day trip trifecta for strolling, relaxation and edification just under an hour from town. These three spots make up a continuous string of parks that are just delightful in any season, packed with charm and action that make it feel like a true getaway.

Strawberry Banke is a living history museum and restoration village depicting Portsmouth seaside life from the 17th, 18th and early 19th centuries. Costumed re-enactors stroll the village and answer questions while conducting chores consistent with daily life of the times. The village offers rotating exhibits and activities for all ages and interests. A combination of indoor and outdoor interpretative exhibits, buildings and museum spaces make for an enjoyable and educational meander. The grounds are open every day, May through October and select times in November and December for holiday tours, candlelight strolls and special events. Check their website before you head out. (www.strawberrybanke.org)

On the day we visited, the park was celebrating the Fairy House Tour, a magical display of tiny homes constructed of natural materials, such as moss, shells, bark and pebbles. Local groups including garden clubs, scout troops and elementary classes created artful miniature wonders that were tucked amongst the well manicured and highly diverse public gardens. Attendees could even make their own fairy houses and place them all over Peirce Island, a walking bridge away from the garden. Peirce is a dog-friendly park which has new walking trails and an off-leash area at the far end of the property. In the summer, Peirce Island's large public pool is open, and picnic tables and facilities are available to all.

Through a combination of nautical beauty, thriving art community and happening food scene, Portsmouth's historic district is bustling. The waterfront offers places for picnics, strolling and performances. The gardens of Prescott Park are a popular spot for wedding photos, and often there are theatre productions, musical performances and dance troupes performing in the open air space. Fun sculptures dot the park and the busy river and docks provide a terrific backdrop. Bring a chair and watch the boats go by, or follow the seacoast path and get in a good, brisk walk.

If all that strolling has made you hungry, Portsmouth is known as a foodie town. Your visit may coincide with the Chili Cook-off or Chowderfest, or you might just want to head into the downtown and grab some coffee at one of the shops, or a burger at the Portsmouth Brewery. Don't forget, Portsmouth is home to Smuttynose and Redhook, so a brewery tour might be something to consider as well. Put this seacoast jewel on your list- you won't be disappointed.

Tewksbury couple (and half the town) runs into Beyoncé at Walmart

BY SHARON ADELMAN CROWLEY
Town Crier Correspondent

TEWKSBURY - When you live in a small suburb with a big box retailer such as Walmart, you can almost always expect to run into family or friends. Running into world-renowned Beyoncé Knowles-Carter however, is not quite your run-of-the-mill shopping experience. It was a rather big surprise for Patti and Joe Crowley who made a quick trip to Walmart the night Beyoncé came to town. The Crowleys were out Christmas shopping when they received a text from their older son Joey. He had one thing to add to the wish list: a new iPhone case.

"It was very last minute," Patti Crowley said. She and her husband went to one store, then decided to check Walmart, where they ran into a friend who said to stick around for some sort of "giveaway."

The couple proceeded to the electronics section and noticed a mob of shoppers surrounding someone in the aisle. "I kept asking my husband, 'Who is that?'" Crowley said. "The next thing I knew, Beyoncé was walk-

Attention Walmart Shoppers

Yes, that's the uber fabulous Beyonce who surprised Christmas shoppers at the Tewksbury Walmart just before Christmas. She spent $37,000 in $50 gift cards for shoppers and gifts for Lazarus House, a charity in Lawrence. The superstar made national news with her impromptu shopping visit.

ing down the aisle."

She had a shopping cart and walked right up to the cashier at the electronics counter Crowley added. "They handed her a phone and she made the announcement that she was giving out $50 gift cards."

The multi-platinum, Grammy Award-winning recording artist was in town for her world tour, "The Mrs. Carter Show." Due to its global success, the tour added dates which included the TD Garden performance that evening, December 20.

In addition to her surprise visit to Walmart, the week prior Beyoncé made iTunes history with an exclusive and unannounced release of her self-titled album, selling more than 80,000 units in three hours.

The move was not without controversy. Releasing the album to iTunes ahead of retailers resulted in Target's refusal to carry it in any of their stores nationwide.

"At Target we focus on offering our guests a wide assortment of physical CDs, and when a new album is available digitally before it is available physically, it impacts demand and sales projections," Target spokesperson Erica Julkowski told Billboard.

Meanwhile Walmart released the album to 4,000 stores nationwide.

"We're gonna do what's right for the customer. Our customers obviously love Beyoncé and we want to make sure we have it in stores..." Wal-Mart spokesperson Sarah McKinney told theGrio.com

It may be more than mere coincidence, some speculate, that the same day CD's went on sale nationwide Beyoncé purchased one from a promotional display in Walmart, handing out $37,500 in gift cards.

Lucky for the Crowleys, it happened to be a Tewksbury Walmart. Patti and her husband each received a $50 gift card from Beyoncé, with a front row view of the superstar. "I had my cell phone with me so I went as close as I could to take pictures," she said.

Somehow, she found herself standing right in front of Beyoncé. With a pink cell phone poised in the air, Patti can be seen in pictures taken by Beyoncé's media team.

The pictures were posted on Beyoncé's Twitter page and used in various news segments, including Inside Edition, where Crowley's cousin spotted her and took a freeze-frame picture for Facebook.

By the time the Crowleys returned home, their three kids already knew about the celebrity encounter. The total amount of the gift cards was divided equally among family members as an early Christmas gift. "We almost didn't go into Walmart," Crowley said. "But we did, and it was a surprise from there." It was a very nice surprise.

Saragosa heading to Chicago for Art School

Katrina Saragosa wasn't exactly sure what she was interested in studying when she entered Shawsheen Valley Technical High School as a freshman, but it didn't take long for the Wilmington resident to fall in love with one particular subject.

Four years later, Saragosa's decision to attend Shawsheen and study Design and Visual Communications has changed her life, and her zip code.

In the fall, Saragosa will attend the School of the Art Institute of Chicago (SAIC), one of the best schools for a student interested in illustration to attend.

"It's a great school," said Shawsheen Tech DVC instructor Michael Azevedo. "She's a great kid."

According to Azevedo, the admissions committee at the college bases the admission on academic achievement, outstanding portfolio and strong personal motivation.

"I had to put together a portfolio of my most recent artwork," Saragosa said. "It had to be around 10 to 15 pieces and it had to be my best stuff. Some of it had to be conceptual, from my imagination, and some of it had to be from observation. I had to put that together, come up with some themes and send that in."

Azevedo admits, he was impressed when Saragosa applied to the school in Chicago.

"It's a big move, a very confident move to apply to a school like Chicago that is so far out of state," he said. "She applied to a lot of other schools and she'll probably get into all of them, but the first acceptance letter she got was from Chicago and that was her first choice. The rest is all just gravy."

After going through Shawsheen's valuable exploratory program, which exposes incoming freshman to each of the school's areas of study, Saragosa settled quickly one of the school's most creative and challenging subjects.

"I always liked to do art, but I always thought of it more as a hobby when I was in middle school," she said. "Being in this environment [at Shawsheen] really helped me. When I went through it, I realized it's what I really wanted to do."

"Our training area [at Shawsheen] is a lot different than all of the other ones," said Azevedo. "After spending four years with us, [students] have to put together a portfolio and this body of work is usually about 20 pieces. It winds up being almost like a Capstone Project, it takes years to complete these pieces of work and that is part of the application process along with a pretty lengthy and thorough writing component. A lot of people are unaware of what it takes."

Through regular academic work and Shawsheen's shop weeks, Saragosa accumulated a portfolio that many college graduates would be lucky to assemble.

Most of Wilmington's incumbents won re-election. Selectmen Mike Newhouse and Lou Cimaglia received 2,692 and 2,697 votes for their respective seats. Kevin MacDonald and Daniel Murphy, the two who hoped to unseat Newhouse and Cimaglia, both lost by huge margins. Robert Hayes, a former member of the school committee, announced earlier that he would not seek re-election, so his seat was up for grabs. It was filled by Julie Broussard, who earned 1,769 votes. Peggy Kane and Kathleen Carroll, who both sought re-election, won easily. They earned 2,278 and 2,054 votes, respectively. Robert Peterson and Robert DiPasquale both returned to the Shawsheen Tech School Committee and the Housing Authority, respectively. Also, Representative Ed Markey might have succeeded John Kerry in the senate, but not in Wilmington. He lost to Gabriel Gomez. Earlier, he came in second in the Democratic Primary to Representative Stephen Lynch—but only in Wilmington.

Benton, Onusseit, and Harris Retire

She's not elected, but she's still a town official, and Joanne Benton, Wilmington's Superintendent, announced this year will be her last. She figured it was the right time to leave. Wilmington, though, made quite an impact on her. The community, she said, is "generous," its students are "intellectually curious." During her tenure, Benton was able to bring full day kindergarten, maintain no fees on sports and activities, and build a new high school. She prides herself on Wilmington's stellar levels of student achievement.

Superintendent of Schools,

Benton's done an outstanding job, and she'll certainly be missed. As will Don Onusseit, the now-retired Superintendent of Public Works, and Carolyn Harris, the retired head of the Historical Society.

New Principal

Linda Peters, the former Math Department Head and 35-year veteran teacher, was named interim principal in 2013, replacing Eric Tracy, who accepted the position of Hamilton-Wenham Regional High School Principal. Tracy had served as principal for nine years.

'Fun on the Fourth' Cancelled

Because of the high school construction, organizers voted in December to cancel the weeklong Fun on the Fourth festivities for July 2014. The Fourth of July Committee tried to find a new location for fireworks but was unsuccessful. The new construction and new artificial turf field behind the school were inside the safety perimeters state fire standards recommend for fireworks discharge, potentially threatening those structures. Officials were disappointed, but they said that they agreed with the decision. In 2013, the carnival was cancelled during the Fun on the Fourth festivities, effectively eliminating the primary source of income the Committee used to purchase fireworks.

Land Purchase

Selectmen and town officials certainly weren't sad about the purchase of land from St. Dorothy's Church and the Archdiocese of Boston, determined at a Special Town Meeting. It was six parcels and 7.86 acres in total, and it cost $1,725,000. The town has $14,190,939 in free cash, which it used to make the purchase. Residents voted 197-9 in favor.

No Confidence

Not everyone was happy this year. Back in April, the Firefighters union decided to take a vote of no confidence in current Chief Edward Bradbury. They sent the Town Crier a letter that detailed alleged insults and harassment and ultimately led to a new task force to sit down and iron out issues between the union and town administration. Town Manager Jeff Hull said that the Fire Chief had his full confidence. He also praised his leadership in a statement to the Crier and at Selectmen meetings.

In September, Hull informed the board that Chief Bradbury expressed his intent to retire from his position in June 2014. Chief Bradbury has been an employee of the town for 40 years, starting out in the Water Department and then moving into the Fire Department. He became chief in 2008. Hull commended the chief for his leadership during his tenure in the town.

"His service is much appreciated," said Selectman Michael Newhouse at the time.

That's our (brief) look back at 2013. See you in 2014, everyone.

Maguire family spokesman and Jack's brother addresses the assembled police officers, friends and family. "Tonight kind of reminds us of that night with the snow and the cold," said Maguire, "We really miss Jack, and it's a great tribute, everyone remembers Jack," adding, "It's really important to us, thank you everybody for coming." Wilmington Town Crier's

Co-Coaches of the Year: Sue Hendee and Steve Scanlon

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Before this calendar year, only three teams -- excluding track-and-field and cheerleading -- had ever captured a state championship in the history of Wilmington High School Athletics.

The first two came when the softball team won back-to-back titles in 1993 and '94 and then the third came in March of 2012 when the Wildcat Boys Hockey team won the Division 2 crown. That team was coached by Steve Scanlon, who at this time last year won his second straight Town Crier Coach of the Year award, which also came two years after being named the Crier's Coach of the Decade. Scanlon and the Wildcats came back this year and accomplished the rare and incredible feat of winning its second straight Division 2 State Championship, joining just Paul Lyman as the only other coach in the history of WHS Athletics to take home a state title, as the track teams won divisional/class Eastern Mass titles.

And for that accomplishment, winning a state championship, Scanlon has won the Crier's Coach of the Year for the third straight year but this time he shares the title with Sue Hendee. All she did was lead the Wildcat Girls' Soccer team to its best season in program history, all the way to the state championship where the team fell in a shoot-out, a four overtime thriller.

One penalty kick away and Wilmington would have won its first state title in program history. But getting to the state title game was no easy accomplishment for the team, who had to knock off Danvers and Concord-Carlisle in overtime games earlier in the tournament.

Hendee guided the team to its third straight Middlesex League Division 2 crown, its first Division 2 North sectional title while being the Division 2 State Finalists. When the team captured the sectional final crown, it gave Hendee her 224th victory, which surpassed Jan Cassidy-Wood's mark of 233 career wins, which is believed to be the all-time mark for a female coaches at WHS since records were kept.

Hendee currently has a mark of 224-198-64, while Cassidy-Wood ended at 223-43-52 during her 25 years with the field hockey program.

In one calendar year, Wilmington High School Athletics were treated to two special teams who enjoyed two tremendous seasons under not only the program's two most veteran coaches, but two extremely good ones, and easy choices for this year's award.

Sue Hendee

This is the second time that Hendee has won the Town Crier award, the first coming ten years ago when she led the Wildcats to its second straight Cape Ann League title. She has won five league titles in her 26 years as head coach, and also has qualified for state tournament play in three different leagues, Merrimack Valley Conference, Cape Ann and now Middlesex League.

This year's team finished with a program best 16-1-1 regular season record before beating Danvers, Arlington and Concord-Carlisle before falling to Notre Dame Academy of Hingham in the state final.

"We came into the season with high expectations after our success last year, and set some goals that were pretty big," said Hendee. "I knew that we had a good chunk of talented players returning, even though it was going to be hard replacing the eight seniors that we lost last year."

"I also knew that there was going to be a large group of freshmen coming in, and they proved to be very talented. In addition to all of this, our JV team last year was undefeated, and there were several strong players to choose from there as well. All three of our teams this year had great seasons. The freshmen were undefeated and the JV and varsity teams only had one loss during the regular season."

"The varsity team's goals included winning the Middlesex League for the third straight year and getting back to the Manning Bowl for the Division Two North Finals. Our loftiest goal was to go undefeated, and we ended up being very close to achieving that as well."

"Finishing with a 19-2-1 record was incredible, and playing in the state final was an opportunity that we have never had before. It was a great ride and one that I will never forget."

Hendee said that so many other people deserve so much of the credit, including her assistants as well as all of the players on the team.

"The coaching staff (includes) Ray Robinson (freshmen), MJ English (JV), Mary Armata and Meaghan Neenan (varsity volunteer assistants), all have extensive soccer backgrounds and they all do a great job," she said. "Although having a record breaking varsity season was great, what made this season most special were the players. Everyone on this team got along, worked hard, was focused, and supported each other."

"I think Lauren Amazeen said it best when she said they were more like sisters than individuals. The seniors were incredible leaders and made the new players feel welcome and a valued part of the team. They had a strong bond and wanted to win for each other."

"I was so happy that this group of ten seniors finished up their careers with a close to perfect season; they absolutely were the reason for it. Lauren, Alex (Bischoff), Kaitlyn (Curley), Cassie (Grasso), Kelly (Hartsough), Ashleigh (Howland), Adrianna (Kippenberger), Rachael (Mara), Marina (Otis) and Caroline (Robarge) will be very difficult to replace, but they have helped their younger teammates adapt to the varsity level and become better players."

Steve Scanlon

It's extremely difficult to win a state championship. Two years in a row is nearly impossible and not too many programs -- well public schools -- have been able to do that.

So after winning the team's first ever state championship in 2012, the Wildcats' Boys Hockey team not only came back to do it again, but did it knowing that every team they faced brought their 'A' game every second of every game hoping to knock off the reigning state champs. And what separates Steve Scanlon from the rest of the coaches is his ability to get so much out of each and every kid he coaches and each and every team he coaches. They buy into his system, his style and his approach. But he says it's the kids who really deserve the praise.

"We really had a great bunch of kids the last two years and they are the ones who really deserve the credit especially (this past year's team) to come back and do it a second straight time," he said. "Only the very best teams are able to Wilmington High Girls Soccer Coach Sue Hendee had many reasons to celebrate this year after leading the team to its greatest season in program history.

repeat. To have everyone coming after you every single night (is very tough) and to keep winning (was very impressive). They had a great time playing and with each other and they won't realize what they accomplished for years."

Scanlon was asked about having that bulls-eye on the team's back and said right away in the team's first game last season against Woburn that proved evident.

"Look at the first game of the season against Woburn and that (loss) might have been the best thing to happen to us," he said. "I know we had some guys out to start last season. But we lost and it was like (Woburn) won the Super Bowl so we had to face that every night and I think it was good for us to see it right away and get back to work. Then we started working again which obviously helped. Then we started rolling out and we started to win some big games."

"I think playing Malden Catholic was a huge confidence booster for us even though we lost that game. I thought there was a lot of pressure on the kids and I thought they handled it very well. But if you look only the very best teams win it two years in a row, and it's so tough when every team is slugging it out to beat you."

Wilmington finished the season with a Middlesex League Division 2 championship for the second straight year before knocking off Stoneham, Boston Latin, Lincoln-Sudbury, Danvers and then Franklin to take home the state title with a final record of 21-3-2 giving Scanlon a career mark of 284-150-51 in his tenure at WHS dating back to the 1991-'92 season.

"I thought after the scare in the tournament against Stoneham, we played the best games of the season especially with Lincoln-Sudbury and Danvers," said Scanlon. "We hit our stride at the right time."

Scanlon also wanted to give credit to his assistant coaches, Mark DiGiovanni and Brian Gouthro, the latter coming in for his first season.

"His first year is a hard thing to do because you don't know the kids or the program," said Scanlon. "But we had a real good supporting cast between the coaches, Michael (Cabral) and Jason (Dango) coming back to help so that was all great."

Wilmington takes third and Shawsheen fourth

Littleton defeats Redmen for Christmas Tournament title

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

TEWKSBURY - Going into the annual Wilmington Knights of Columbus/Larry McGrath Memorial Tournament, all four teams had something to prove. Wilmington was looking to win its fifth straight championship and at the same time trying to snap its 19-game losing streak. Tewksbury was looking to win its first tournament title since 2005, Littleton was looking to avenge last year's disappointing display in the tournament and Shawsheen Tech was looking to upset some teams since they had some mighty challenges.

In the end, it was Littleton who first beat Wilmington on a last second buzzer on Friday night before coming from behind to defeat an undefeated Tewksbury squad, 69-63, to take home this year's title which was played at Tewksbury Memorial High School with the construction of the new Wilmington High School.

Littleton is coached by Mike Lombard, the all-time leading scorer in Wilmington High School's program history.

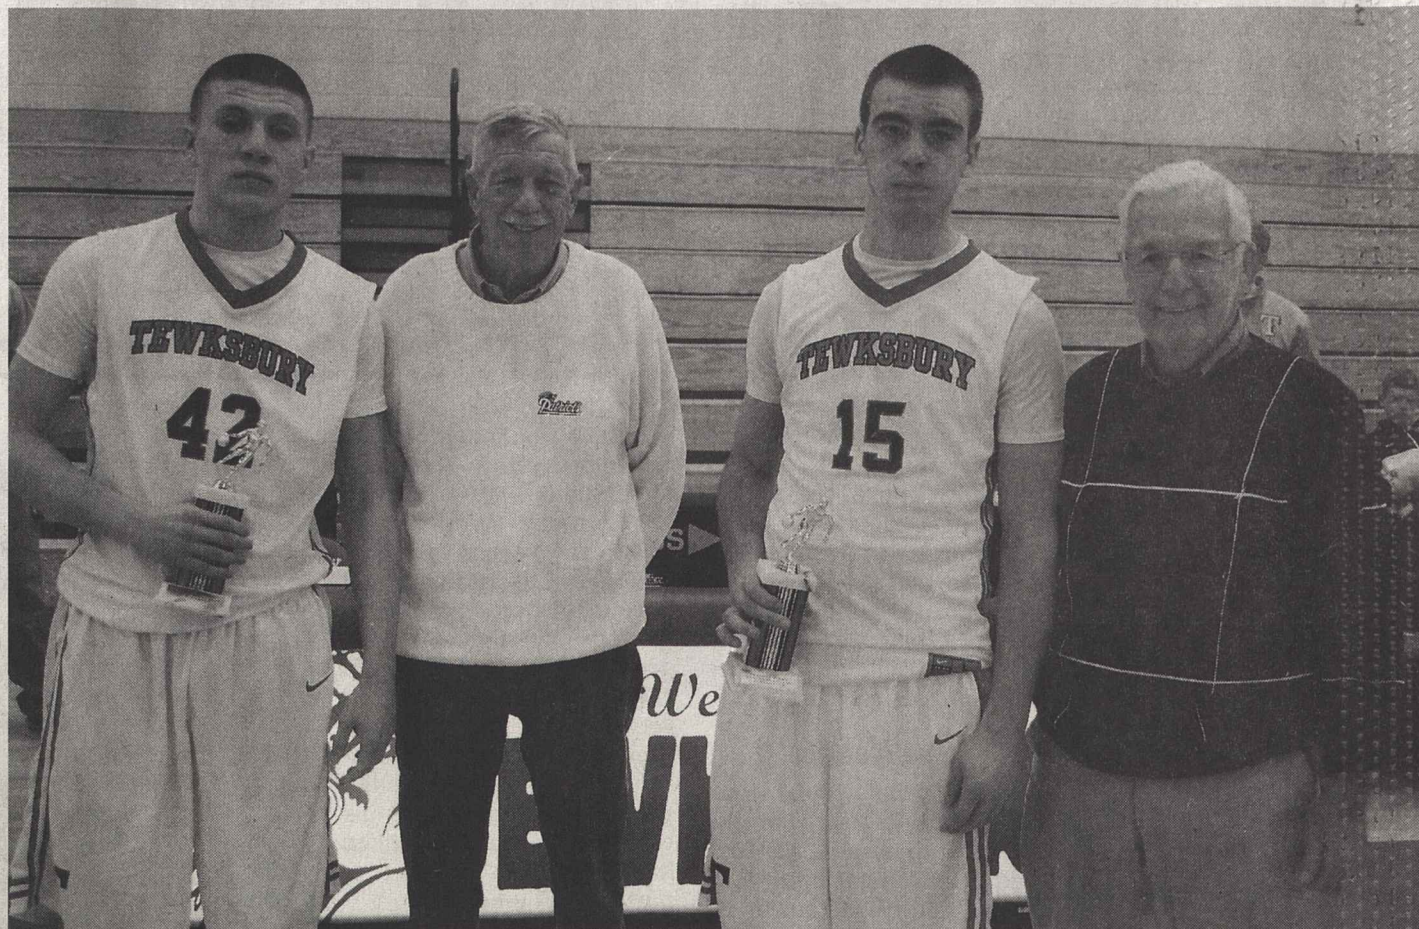

Littleton trailed by as many as 14 points with 4:42 left in the second quarter. The Tigers were able to cut the deficit down to seven with 2:37 and that's when the fireworks went off. Twenty-seven seconds later, Tewksbury point guard Nate Tanaglia was taken down but no foul was called, but one was called on the home town team instead. Redmen head coach Phil Conners voiced his displeasure with the non-call and was given a technical foul. Immediately after that first technical, he was given a second technical which is an automatic ejection from the game. According to MIAA rules, a coach who gets thrown out from a game has to serve a two-game suspension. After the game was over, Conners said he would appeal any suspension. He said that all he said to the referee in question was that he was "incompetent".

"I did a terrible job preparing this team," said Conners. "(Littleton) played man-to-man (on Friday night) and we didn't talk about zone (defense) but that stuff you have to react too. I just did an awful job (coaching tonight). I let us down. I can't be thrown out of a game. I let the team down and I let the kids down."

Littleton connected on three of six free throws all coming with 2:10 left in the first half and the 14-point lead vanished to four points, and then one before the half ended as Tournament MVP Travis Bassett nailed a three-pointer to close it out at 35-34.

The third quarter was very sloppy on all accounts and Littleton held on to a one-point 46-45 lead. Then in the fourth quarter the game went back-and-forth with the lead changing seven times before Littleton took a three-point lead with two minutes to go after Alex McLaughlin drained a three-pointer and was fouled on the play. He converted the free throw giving the Tigers the lead and they never looked back from there outscoring Tewksbury 9-3 in the next 1:50 before Nick Nobrega hit a three-pointer with two seconds left.

Bassett was named the Tournament MVP after he scored 21 points against Tewksbury which came after netting 18 against Wilmington. Tewksbury's Kevin Dick and Justin Derrah as well as Wilmington's Connor Bennett were all named to the all-tournament team. Dick had eight points in each game, while Derrah had seven in the opening 80-43 win over Shawsheen Tech before adding 19 in the loss to Littleton. Bennett had 21 points and 14 rebounds against Littleton and then 15 points and 11 rebounds in the consolation win over Shawsheen.

Derrah was the lone player to finish in double figures for Tewksbury in the championship game. Tewksbury finished 18-for-30 from the free throw line while Littleton finished 22-for-30.

In the first round 80-43 win over Shawsheen, eleven different players got on the board for Tewksbury including Alex DiRocco and Joe Csokmay with 15 points each, while Henry Roberts drained three treys in the final few minutes for his nine points off the bench.

Wilmington was defeated by Littleton 54-53 in the first round match-up on Friday. The 'Cats had leads of 47-42 with 5:13 left, 51-46 with 3:40 left, 53-48 with 1:42 left only to see Littleton score the game's final six points on two free throws and buckets with 29 seconds left and one second left, including Nick Fontanella scoring on a nice post up move down low despite being double covered.

"The kid made a real tough shot," said Wildcat head coach Joe Maiella. "We had two kids around him and the kid made a nice move getting through our guys but we didn't do a good job in the last three minutes of the game taking care of the basketball when we had a five point lead and a three point lead. We had a bunch of turnovers in a row, a couple of bad shots, well not necessarily bad but they were rushed. The costly turnovers just really affected us in the last few minutes."

"We didn't play well whatsoever in the first half. The second half was much better as we got Bennett going inside and then (Zach) Abbott going from the outside. We just didn't come out and play well in the first half and that affected us and when you fall behind like that, it's so tough to play catch up."

Abbott was the second player in double figures as he finished with ten, all coming in the third quarter.

In the consolation game on Saturday, Wilmington defeated Shawsheen Tech, 56-41, to end the team's 20-game losing streak. It was the team's first win since beating both Shawsheen and Tewksbury in last year's tournament.

"I thought we did an outstanding job especially after last night's loss," said Maiella. "Last night was a game that we should have obviously won but we didn't close it out. I thought we played much smarter basketball down the stretch tonight, in the last four or five minutes we were trying to milk off 15 to 20 seconds off the shot clock and I just think we played much smarter down the stretch in tonight's game. You got to learn how to win. It's a process and once you learn how to do that you have the mentality that you can go out and win a game so now we have to go out and win a league game. That's the next step."

Wilmington had the lead in the game for all but two minutes of the game as Shawsheen took leads of 10-8, 14-13 and 24-23 but for all short periods of time. Wilmington closed out the first half with a 27-24 lead before breaking things open in the third quarter outscoring the Rams 17-7. Besides Bennett's 15 points, James O'Regan also had 15 and Abbott and Scott Manganelli each had 11 as those four players accounted for all but four of the team's points.

"I thought we got the ball inside when we had too and we also executed our sets," said Maiella. "We did some really good things in our zone offense and we ran certain plays to death, we executed and got good shots off of those sets. Defensively I thought we did a good job on (Jared) Pinette in the second half because he's a very good player. I thought we also defended (Joe) Mason pretty good and those two players are pretty good players."

Wilmington is off until they face a very good Burlington team on Friday as they get back to Middlesex League play.

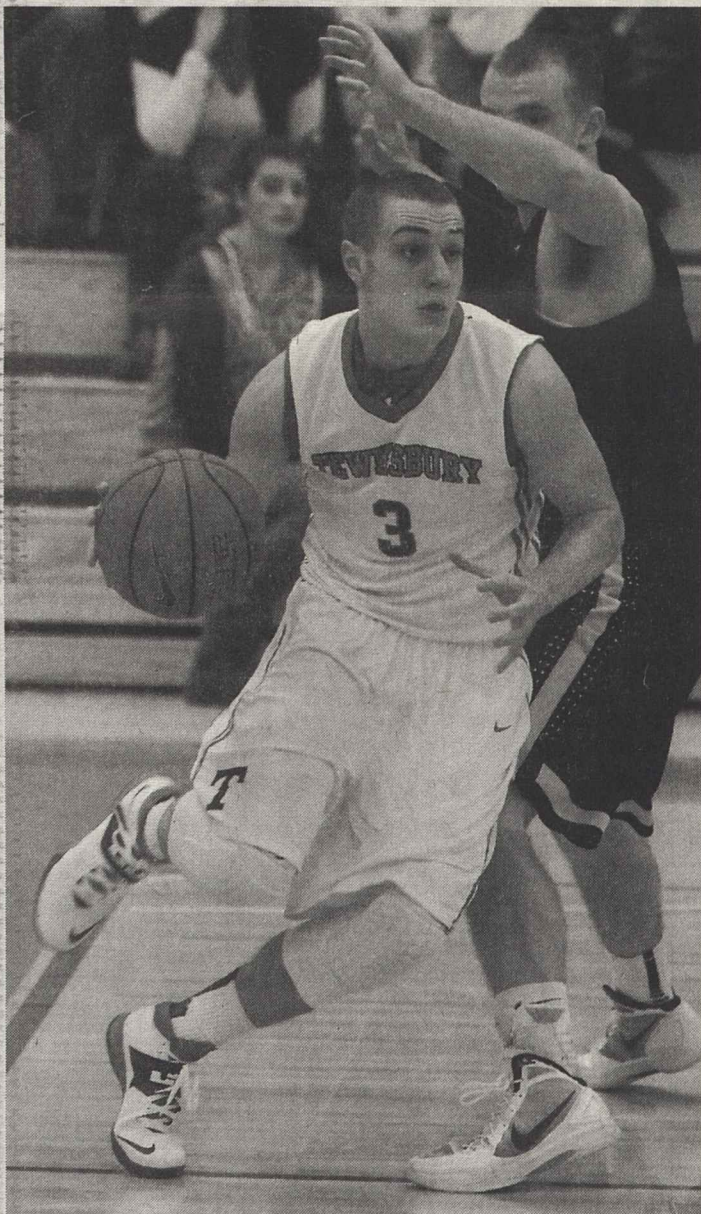

"We're in a hole but there are ways to get out of it," said Maiella. "We're going to improve as a team and get better and our next step is getting a league win."

Shawsheen fell to 0-4 with the two losses. In the loss to Tewksbury, Pat DeCoursey led the way with 16 points and Pinette added 14. In the loss to Wilmington, Pinette had 15 and Mason added 13.

"I thought we played tough but they made more plays than we did, especially in the second half," said Rams coach Greg Bendel after the loss to Wilmington. "We struggled in the second half and they just wore us down."

Above Shawsheen's Jared Pinette and below Wilmington's Connor Bennett were named to the All-Tournament team as well.

WHS Sports Round-Up

Three wrestlers place at Marshfield Tournament

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High School Wrestling team finished 19th out of 36 teams in this past weekend's Marshfield Holiday Tournament. The Wildcats were missing a number of wrestlers due to injuries and forfeited weight classes yet still had three grapplers place in the prestigious tournament. Fox Maxwell, a sophomore, finished fifth at 113 pounds and seniors Matt Diorio and Tom Gorman placed seventh in their weight classes of 132 and 138, respectively.

Fox finished in the top seven in his weight class which included 35 other guys in his bracket," said coach Joel McKenna. "For being a sophomore and taking fifth in this tournament I think is an outstanding accomplishment. I think he's disappointed that he couldn't have done better but that just motivates him and keeps him hungry to do better the next time around. But I'm very happy with how he performed."

McKenna added that both Diorio and Gorman also thought they could have done better, but taking seventh overall is still an impressive feat.

"They are both seniors and for Matty he's always disappointed when he's not at a podium with an award," said McKenna. "He just has so much motivation to get to his own goals. Tom was also disappointed that he couldn't have done better but at the same time he was happy that he placed. I think this is a step in the right direction for both of them to keep moving forward."

GIRLS HOCKEY

After a 0-3 start, including a tough 2-1 loss to Lexington, the Wilmington High School Girls' Hockey team defeated Waltham 5-2 at home Friday morning to win its first game of the season.

"We came out slow and flat," said coach Jeff Covelluzzi. "And we weren't skating. But things changed around in the final two minutes of the first period and then throughout the second period. Our first line of Erin Kelly, Caroline Robarge and Taylor Perella are starting to click. It was good to see us put five goals on the board so hopefully that will be a confidence booster the rest of the way."

Robarge (2 goals, 1 assist), Kelly (2 goals) and Perella (3 assists) combined for eight points while Lauren Fitch and Olivia Wingate had two assists each. Chloe Castellano had the final goal and goalie Shelby McHugh made 14 saves for the win.

"Lauren Fitch had a real good game (as a defenseman) in both ends of the ice, defending and rushing the puck up a few times to set up the forwards," said Covelluzzi.

GIRLS TRACK

The Wilmington High School Girls Indoor Track-and-Field team dropped a very close meet to Melrose, 44-42, to fall to 0-3 on the season.

Among the highlights came in the hurdles as Wilmington swept that event behind Danielle Baldi (10.39), Vicky Lee (10.88) and Maria Patrone (11.5).

In the 300, Alex Bischoff and Cassie Grasso finished first and second, and Kelly Hartsough also took first in the 600 (1:43.7), followed by Julia Gake (1:50). Jordyn Granara took the 1,000 meters with a time of 3:23, while the final first place came from the 4x400 relay team of Bischoff, Gake, Hartsough and Grasso with a time of 4:22.

Casey McFall (8.04 in the dash) and Brianna Tavares (27-3) in the shot put, both took second to round out the scoring.

GIRLS HOOP

The Wilmington High School Girls Basketball team split its two games in the Revere Christmas Tournament first losing to Bedford 54-23 before coming back to overtake Pope John of Everett, 49-42.

"Bedford is a very good team but at the same time we didn't play well at all," said coach Brie Karow. "We gave up 11 more points on the free throw line, plus they had three or four three-pointers where the shooter was wide open everytime. We just didn't play well at all."

On Monday, Wilmington came back to defeat Pope John to push their overall record to 3-2. Carli Brent led the way with 16 points, followed by Rachael Mara with nine and Christa Brent with seven. Carli Brent was named the team's MVP of the tournament.

BOYS HOCKEY

The Wildcats captured the Haverhill Christmas Tournament for the second straight year, taking the Guptil Division with wins over East Longmeadow (9-1) and North Andover (2-1). The team is now 3-1-2 and on a five game unbeaten streak after losing the team's opening game.

In the win over East Longmeadow, Austin O'Neal led the way with two goals and an assist, while Steve DeFuria added two goals. Other multiple point-getters include Luke Foley, Steve Cannata and Eric Steeves with one goal and one assist. Jimmy Davey and Mike Capistrano with two assists each.

In the win over North Andover, Luke Foley and Cody McGowan scored first period goals which was enough for the win. Goalie Drew Foley made 24 saves and was named the Tournament MVP for the second straight year.

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

It's been a rough start to the season for the Shawsheen Tech Girls Hockey team, as they are off to an 0-4 start after a 5-4 loss to Central Catholic last Saturday. However, better days seem certain to lie ahead, not just this season, but in years to come as the Lady Rams roster is loaded with young and talented players who are improving with each game and practice under the direction of coach Bob Roach.

"We are a young team and we are rebuilding," Roach said. "We are still trying to get players in position and get them working well together. We've got some younger kids so it is a work in progress, but the girls are giving us a great effort."

The Lady Rams do return five key players from last year's team that went 6-11-1, as senior quad captains, defenseman Alyssa Post of Tewksbury, and forwards Rachel McLaren of Wilmington and last year's leading scorer Kennedy Harper along with goalie Kirby Corcoran will lead the way for the team. Junior Kaitlyn O'Shea who was second on the team in scoring last season also returns to the lineup.

But beyond those five players the Shawsheen roster is loaded with many talented but inexperienced players, particularly on defense where Post's veteran presence will provide a stabilizing influence on a young group that includes freshmen Taylor Lynch of Wilmington and Nicole Antonoff and sophomore Katie Stevens.

"Almost all of them are first year players and they are seeing a lot of action which should really pay off for them," Roach said. "For the freshmen especially it takes a lot to get used to the different speed of the game. It's also kind of hard for a ninth grader to get used to the physical play, but they are doing a great job of learning."

One thing the Lady Rams definitely have to their advantage defensively is the return of Corcoran between the pipes. Corcoran was very solid in net for Shawsheen last season in her first tie as a goaltender and Roach is hoping for even bigger and better things from the senior this season.

"As a senior she is showing some great team leadership and I am expecting great things from her," Roach said. "She had a great game (against Central Catholic) even though she let up five goals. She played really well and I think she will just keep getting better."

The first line for the Lady Rams, which accounted for all four goals against Central Catholic, will be made up of Harper, O'Shea and sophomore Lee Faulkerson, who has shown some great promise in the early going.

"They are all talented players, but it takes some time to get used to playing together," Roach said. "As the chemistry between them gets better they will continue to improve. It will start to come together as the season goes on."

The second line of forwards will feature McLaren and Rachael Stocker along with a combination of a number of young players fighting for the third spot, including sophomores Isabela Galinos, Jessica Skane and Kasie Conti and juniors Skylar Jacques of Tewksbury and Keara Pfaff.

"They are all fighting to contribute and they are all giving us a great effort," Roach said. "That second line worked very well against Central, but they pucks just did not bounce their way."

There is still a long way to go in this season, and Roach points out that there is still a long way to go in many of his young players careers as well.

"Right now it is hard for them, but down the road it will be very good for them," Roach said. "We have had many players in the past who have done for us, just continued to improve as they got more experience, and I think a lot of the kids in this group can do the same."

GIRLS HOOP

It was a week of highs and lows for the Shawsheen Tech Girls Basketball team, as they went 1-1 in the Bellingham Christmas Tournament with a blowout loss and a blowout win to their credit. The mixed results left the Lady Rams with a 2-2 record on the season as they prepare to enter the thick of their CAC Large schedule.

Shawsheen began play in the Bellingham Tournament last Friday, taking on Watertown and they suffered a 63-34 defeat to the eventual tournament champions. Junior guard Emily Irwin led the Lady Rams with 12 points and Emily Knoops of Tewksbury along with Rachael Fahey both played well, but it t

It was a much different story for Shawsheen on Saturday however, as they routed Blackstone-Millville by a score of 64-32. The Lady Rams were led once again by Irwin with 12 points. For her efforts Irwin was elected to the All-Tournament team.

Shawsheen also got strong play once again from Knoops and Fahey who had 11 and ten points respectively.

BOYS HOCKEY

It was a similar story for the Shawsheen Boys Hockey team who had their own ups and down this week, first dropping a 3-1 decision to Haverhill in the consolation game of the Haverhill Christmas Tournament on Friday, but bouncing back the next day with an 8-0 road win over CAC rival Mystic Valley.

In the loss to Haverhill the lone Rams goal came early in the third period from Wilmington resident Brandon Gentile to pull them within 2-1, but Shawsheen could not get the equalizer and Haverhill added an empty netter in the closing seconds to drop the Rams to 0-3 at the time.

Despite the loss, Shawsheen goalie Corey Goggin played well, making 35 saves to keep the Rams in the game.

After the struggle with Haverhill the Rams had no such worries against Mystic Valley as they rolled to the blowout victory led by three goals from junior Paul Rice of Tewksbury, while Gentile added a goal and two assists.

Tom Avtgis and Phil Mills added a goal and an assist each for the Rams, who got six saves in net from Ryan Barnard for the victory.

Tewksbury Travel Hoop highlights

7th Grade Blue

CJ Zemetres missed an awesome game as his teammates defeated the Winthrop Vikings, 47-18. Derek Shumaker sailed through a sea of blue shirts while Michael Rosenberg rode the waves, grabbed a rebound, and scored the first basket. Connor Nugent breezed through with 12 points, getting basket after basket.

Brandon Melo had perfect lay ups and a good YMCA defense. Matt Cahill played the edge and grabbed the ball without going out of bounds, pushed it up the court and scored a basket. David Miller had the wind at his back with his strong, accurate passes. Vinnie Hulme was grounded but controlled the slide and got up to get the ball back.

Tony Mannaetta worked the ropes by grabbing rebound after rebound. Joe Balboni refused to let the other team pirate the ball away from him despite their best efforts.

Not a team to rest, the team got up bright and early the next morning to take on Billerica. They won the first game 44-43. Brandon Melo, Vinnie Hulme, Tony Mannaetta, Derek Schumaker and Michael Rosenberg all played very well contributing in various ways.

Joe Balboni must have had some magic in that old jersey as he bounce passed the ball under the Billerica player's legs. Casey Decost flew around to get the rebounds. Connor Nugent led the team by scoring eight points.

Without skipping a beat, the team immediately challenged a larger Billerica team that outnumbered us in players and coaches. Connor Nugent started the game off by tipping the ball out of bounds, so he got a second chance. Michael Rosenberg gifted the team with the first basket. Vinnie Hulme stole the ball, Joe Balboni got the ball up the court time and again. He even took a dive and kept going despite his injury. Tony Mannaetta was able to win game after game of hot potato with Billerica's players.

Connor Nugent, Brandon Melo, Vincent Hulme, and Derek Schumaker entertained the team with great defense.

Sixth Grade White

The 6th Grade White team continued their undefeated streak 4-0 in Merrimack Valley Youth Basketball League. Tewksbury commanded the court from the beginning of the game defeating Wakefield 57-27. Tewksbury dominated the game both offensively and defensively, keeping Wakefield scoreless through most of the first half.

Offensively Tewksbury was led by Aiden Doherty (18), Thomas Barinelli (8), Joey Branchaud (8), Anthony DiSanto (6), Sean Phaneuf (5), Evan Mantel (4), Santino Garofalo (4), and Jason Martineau (4). Every player on the team contributed offensively to today's win.

Defensively Tewksbury dominated the court. Wakefield couldn't break through the half court press set up by Sean Phaneuf, Joe Branchaud, Aiden Doherty, Thomas Barinelli and Evan Mantel. Forwards Anthony DiSanto and Jason Martineau were relentless in several key plays which shut down the Wakefield offense resulting in turnovers. Also key to the Tewksbury defense are centers Santino Garofalo and Robert Evangelista, both played aggressively under the net.

Tewksbury 6th Grade White continued its undefeated MVL season Saturday with a 36-17 pounding over Methuen. Tewksbury won the opening tip off and never looked back as the 6th graders went on a 12-0 run to start the game.

By halftime Tewksbury had a 21-6 lead behind the dominating play of Aiden Doherty (12 pts) and Santino Garofalo (4 pts). Max Cummings and Evan Mantel came alive in the second half by crashing the boards and blocking shots to

Jr. Redmen come away with a clutch win

On Saturday December 21st the Jr. Redmen Squirt AAA Hockey Team kicked off their busy Christmas schedule with a 3-2 win over the Winchester Sachems.

The Jr. Redmen will play six games over the next week including games in the annual Boston Bruins Christmas Tourney.

The Jr. Redmen came out buzzing and controlled play for much of the first three minutes of the game, getting quality scoring chances from Alex Pescatore, Billy Doherty, and Conor Cremin.

The Sachems started to use their size and speed to create offensive zone chances and took a 1-0 lead with 8:38 left in the first period. Justin Rooney nearly tied the game for the Jr. Redmen when he took the puck end-to-end on a great rush but his wrist rang off the left post.

The Sachems took a two-goal lead with 5:02 left in the initial period. The Jr. Redmen battled back looking to cut into the two-goal lead but the Sachem goalie made great back-to-back saves on Maci Chapman and Sean Murphy. The Jr. Redmen were finally rewarded for their hard work when Jason Cooke beat the Sachem goalie on a nice deke move, assist to Brady Chapman.

keep Methuen in check. Jason Martineau (2 pts) and Robert Evangelista (3 pts) played monster games on defense by stealing passes, rebounding and out-toughing an aggressive Methuen team.

Rounding out the scoring were Colby Ward and Thomas Barinelli with four points each, Sean Phaneuf with three points and Anthony DeSanto and Joey Branchaud with two points each.

Tewksbury 6 Red

Tewksbury 6 Red had a busy weekend with three consecutive games. The results were mixed as Tewksbury sandwiched a win between two losses.

Friday night Tewksbury travelled to Tyngsboro and dropped a heart breaker 32-29 in a thrilling game. Tewksbury struggled in the first half with poor shooting and found itself down by eight at halftime.

The team came out determined in the second half and battled back to within two points but could not get over the hump. The scoring came from Richie Markwarth (6 pts), Greg Sencabaugh (5 pts), Garrett Kingston, Shane Aylward, and Thomas Bradley (4 pts each), Chris Antonelli, Nolan Timmons and Paul Manzi (2 pts each).

On Saturday morning, Tewksbury traveled to Stoneham and took out their frustrations. In a very rough and tumble game, Tewksbury jumped to an early lead and never looked back on the way to a 47-31 victory. Kingston led all scorers in this one with 14 points followed by Bradley with ten. The remainder of the offense came from Aylward, Timmons and Manzi (4 pts each), Markwarth (3 pts), Nicky Iannacci (2 pts), and Sencabaugh and Antonelli with one point each. But the best news of the day was the return of Colby Brown who added four points in his season debut.

On Sunday morning, Tewksbury hosted undefeated Methuen and battled them hard throughout the first half with the teams matching baskets most of the way, but Methuen went on a late run to take a seven point lead at the break. Tewksbury then went ice cold with its first second-half point coming eight minutes in.

By that time, it was clear that Tewksbury's legs were spent from the busy weekend and the game spiraled out of control with Methuen leaving with a 51-29 victory. Offensively, it was Kingston and Bradley leading the way with six points, followed by Timmons (4 pts), Markwarth, Iannacci and Sencabaugh (3 pts each), and Brown and Antonelli rounding out the scoring with 2 points each. Tyler Keough played tough defensively.

When the dust settled, Tewksbury was left with a 4-2 record in league action (10-4 overall) heading into the Holiday break.

Tewksbury White

Tewksbury White played great defense against Billerica White to hold them to a season low 26 points. The press put alot of pressure on Billerica and the scored ten points off the turnovers. Travis Memurdo led the team with ten points. Joe Schifano added five points. Zach Tyler added four points along with four assists. Kyle Rossetti Chad Boshetti and Jared Rizzo added three each. They hit the boards hard with 21 rebounds between the three of them.

Riley Frost had a couple of key assists and rebounds. Nick Larson had two steals along with two rebounds. Kevin Carrol added two points and Dalton Bere added a free throw and put alot of pressure on Billerica with his speed on the press. It was a great win with a final score of 35-26.

The second period started with the Jr. Redmen determined to tie the game and did just that with 10:50 left when Timmy Sweeney made a great play at the Sachem blue line to keep the puck in the zone.

The line of Billy Doherty, Sean Murphy, and Alex Pescatore then worked the forecheck to perfection, resulting in Pescatore firing a hard wrist under the sliding goalie, assists to Doherty and Murphy.

The Sachems fought back looking to regain the lead but Jr. Redmen goalie Ben O'Keefe made three highlight reel saves on the same shift to keep the score tied 2-2.

The Sachems kept attacking but great defensive efforts from Andrew Grieco, Timmy Sweeney, Jack Griffin, and Justin Rooney kept the puck away from the Jr. Redmen net.

With time winding down in the second period the Jr. Redmen had a great chance to take the lead but shots by Jake McDonough, Andrew Della Piana, and Conor Cremin were all turned away by the quick Sachem goalie.

Both teams were determined to get the win headed into the Christmas break and they came out flying to start the third period. Winchester had an early breakaway in the third period but once again Jr. Redmen backstop Ben O'Keefe made the big save.

With just over five minutes left to play in the period the line of Conor Cremin, Andrew Della Piana, and Jake McDonough worked the offensive zone cycle to perfection resulting in a point blank shot for Della Piana but the Sachem goalie made a great diving save to keep the score deadlocked.

The Jr. Redmen kept attacking and took the lead 3-2 with 4:15 left in the game when Maci Chapman made a nice clearing pass to Jason Cooke at center ice, Cooke skated the puck into the offensive zone, drew the Sachem defender to him, and slid a perfect pass to Brady Chapman. Brady wasted no time and fired the puck over the goalie's blocker and into the back of the net, assists to Jason and Maci.

The final four minutes of the game were up-and-down with both teams getting scoring chances. The Sachems pulled their goalie with 1:35 left in the game but the Jr. Redmen got great defensive efforts from Sean Murphy, Alex Pescatore, Justin Rooney, Andrew Grieco, and Brady Chapman to keep pucks away from Benny O'Keefe and left the rink with a well-deserved 3-2 win.

Pan Mass Challenge sign-ups

This is the season for thousands of cyclists from across the country to come together and gear up to ride and raise millions of dollars for cancer research. Registration for the 35th annual Pan-Mass Challenge (PMC) opens Jan. 15. PMC weekend, set for Aug. 2 and 3, 2014, will raise money to support adult and pediatric patient care and cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through the Jimmy Fund.

The PMC is the most successful athletic fundraising event in the nation, raising more money for charity than any other single event. In 2013, the PMC generated more than 50 percent of the Jimmy Fund's annual revenue and was Dana-Farber's largest single contributor.

This year, more than 5,500 cyclists will ride to raise $40 million and bring the PMC's 35-year Jimmy Fund contribution to $454 million. The PMC contributes 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar directly to the Jimmy Fund.

The PMC is a fully-supported bike-a-thon that takes cyclists through 46 cities and towns across the Commonwealth. Cyclists come from 38 states and five countries representing riders of various cycling experience levels, cancer survivors and current cancer patients, ages 13 to over 80. The 35th annual event will offer 13 routes that range from 25 to 190 miles over one or two days. Fundraising minimums range from $500 to $4,300.

"The Pan-Mass Challenge is more than an annual bike-a-thon," says PMC Founder and Executive Director Billy Starr. "Rather, the PMC is a diverse group of committed and passionate individuals who connect beyond the bicycle to work toward one unifying mission: to help raise funds to find cures for cancer. Their collective efforts make a tremendous impact in the global cancer fighting community."

Known as "seed money," PMC funds enable clinicians and scientists to pursue innovative research that is not yet eligible for government or industry funding. PMC money could be funding the next cures for cancer.

For more information about the PMC, or to register to ride, visit pmc.org. Like the Pan-Mass Challenge on Facebook or follow the annual bike-a-thon on Twitter, @PanMassChallenge.

Winchester's Morrison finds niche in coaching

BY GORDON VINCENT

Anyone who remembers Jamie Morrison as a basketball player for Winchester High ought not to be surprised that he's become a basketball coach.

Morrison's journey in the sport has taken him to some historic and significant basketball locations in Kansas, Philadelphia and Tennessee, before finally landing in North Adams, as the head coach of the mens basketball team at Mass. College of Liberal Arts (MCLA).

Morrison has revived a floundering program that last year hosted the championship game of the Mass. State Collegiate Athletic Conference (MASCAC), and Morrison was named the Coach of the Year in the conference.

"Even though we lost in the championship game, it was exciting," said Morrison. "The stands were full and our gym was rocking. We're starting to build some momentum with the program, and the school is really getting behind us."

The Trailblazers were the pre-season pick to win the MASCAC title this year, but have struggled to a 2-7 record thus far, at least partly due to a rugged non-conference schedule that has included New York University, Rensselaer and next-door rival Williams. MCLA returns from winter break on Jan. 2 and will play in the Sponaugle New Year's Tournament at Franklin & Marshall College in Lancaster, Pa., before starting its conference slate.

"It's been a disappointing year so far, but we hope the schedule we've played so far will help us once we get into the conference games," said Morrison.

Beginnings in Winchester

A 1992 graduate of Winchester High, Morrison was a player on some good Sachem basketball teams that regularly finished in the top half of the Middlesex League and qualified for the state tournament. Morrison went on to play at UMass-Boston, seeing action as a freshman, but after re-shirting his sophomore year, he transferred to the University of Tennessee. The Volunteers were coming off a probationary period that limited the number of scholarships the school could offer, so he toyed with the idea of walking onto the team. Instead, he ended up working out with the women's team, under legendary head coach Pat Summitt, who led the Lady Vols to eight national championships.

The exposure to top-flight coaching may have planted a seed in Morrison, who then transferred to UMass-Amherst, from which he graduated.

He then returned to Winchester High and landed a job under Quinton Dale, first as the freshman coach and then with the junior varsity, which he guided to the best record in the Middlesex League. With Dale away attending to a family situation, he stepped in for the final game of the season against Woburn. The Sachems defeated the Tanners, denying their bid for a perfect record in league play.

Morrison then went off to graduate school at Temple University, another college with a widely-renowned mens basketball program, and served for one year as an assistant at Morrisville (Pa.) High. He also worked for Harvey Pollack, the former director of statistical information for the Philadelphia 76ers who publishes the NBA Statistical Yearbook, a compilation of league stats that is regarded as an invaluable resource for those who keep track of the sport.

During his second year of graduate school at Temple (from which he would earn a Master's degree in sports administration), Morrison started to seriously consider coaching basketball as an occupation. He took a job with Haskell Indian Nations University in Lawrence, Kan., a college for members of federally-recognized Native-American tribes in the U.S. Again, he had landed in a basketball hotbed, as Haskell is a short distance from University of Kansas. The first coach of the Kansas mens basketball program was James Naismith, who invented the sport.

With about 1,000 students, Haskell has a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) program. Recruiting became a bit of a challenge for Morrison, who was only able to sign up Native American students.

"I traveled all over the country - Montana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico, you name it," said Morrison, who himself is of Native American ancestry. "But I was young and didn't have any kids at the time. It was a grind, and I had another job on campus, but it was a valuable experience."

Playing against schools in the Midlands Collegiate Athletic Conference that did not have similar enrollment restrictions, Haskell struggled at first under Morrison but he eventually guided them to the top half of the league. After four seasons at Haskell, he wanted to return to Massachusetts to be closer to home, and landed the mens basketball coaching position at MCLA.

Starting over at MCLA

Movie Reviews by Paul Feely

"American Hustle" entertaining

"AMERICAN HUSTLE" is a whirl-wind of deep-plunging necklines and ill-suited perms, drugs and dancing and the chance to make something more of yourself. All the actors are fantastic and the movie is a fun romp.

"AMERICAN HUSTLE"
GRADE: ***

"American Hustle" opens with a nearly unrecognizable Christian Bale, balding and looking 40 pounds heavier, working a ridiculous comb-over.

It's hilarious and sad and, especially, entertaining. David O. Russell's movie - partially filmed in Woburn - never lets up from there. Boasting terrific acting, a brilliant soundtrack, outrageous outfits and hair, and a sorta based-on-fact story of ambition and greed, it's relentless, in the best possible way.

This really could be the most-fun movie of the year.

Russell co-wrote the story with Eric Singer, and they based it loosely on Abscam, the FBI sting of the late 1970s that snared a U.S. senator along with a few congressional representatives.

Bale plays Irving Rosenfeld, a con man who offers desperate people loans he has no intention of providing. He's assisted in this by his lover, Sydney Prosser (Amy Adams), a former stripper from New Mexico who has reinvented herself, sort of, as Lady Edith, some sort of English noblewoman with supposed ties to London banking. (Those ties are, of course, are phony.)

They get caught early on by Richie DiMaso (Bradley Cooper), a vain, cocaine-fueled FBI agent whose ambition outstrips his intelligence by a fair amount. He offers Rosenfeld and Lady Edith (he doesn't know her real background) a deal: Help him catch even bigger prey and they can go free.

Of course, asking con artists to help you con people is fraught with risks, but DiMaso is too eager to impress his long-suffering boss (Louis C.K.) to think things through all the time.

Things are messy to begin with, but they get worse. Rosenfeld, as it happens, is married to the brassy, brazen Rosalyn (Jennifer Lawrence), whose habit of listening on the other line to his phone conversations proves troublesome.

Then there is Carmine Polito (Jeremy Renner), the mayor of Camden, who is a key target of Rosenfeld's scam, which involves fake Arab sheiks and money to build casinos. Polito genuinely seems to want to provide opportunity for his constituents, even if that opportunity is illegal. Rosenfeld feels for him, goes to dinner with him, becomes friends with him.

The film is a whirl-wind of deep-plunging necklines and ill-suited perms, drugs and dancing and the chance to make something more of yourself.

All the actors are fantastic, all going places we haven't seen them go before and, given the talent involved, that's saying something. Cooper is perfect as the nifty DiMaso, right down to the tiny rollers he puts in his hair for maximum tackiness. Renner manages to help us find empathy with Polito, lost in the swirl of con after con. Adams shows a ferocity hinted at in "The Master" but given full bloom here. She's determined to change her life at any cost; she uses her sexuality as a tool, playing Rosenfeld and playing DiMaso. Or is she? Not knowing is part of the fun.

Lawrence is great, giving Rosalyn a depth that surprises. Rosalyn is a loud-mouthed, uncouth drunk but no less ambitious than the rest of this crowd. It's just that, like them, she doesn't always go about realizing that ambition in the smartest way.

Outstanding as they all are, Bale is better, and better than he's ever been. It's not just the physical transformation. It's how he makes Rosenfeld and his ability to take advantage of other people's weaknesses, somehow sympathetic. He rips off people for a living, but he has his own twisted code of ethics. And he's a lot smarter than he seems.

Throw in songs like "10538 Overture" by the Electric Light Orchestra, which is used to perfection not once but twice, and we find Russell at the top of his game, along with everyone else in the movie. It may not be the most serious examination of greed ever made, but it is likely the most entertaining.

"ANCHORMAN 2: THE LEGEND CONTINUES"
GRADE: ***

"Anchorman 2: The Legend Continues" is so weird that it's almost hard to believe a major movie studio is releasing it.

Folks who saw the first "Anchorman" know the sort of thing they're in for, but it's difficult to describe for newcomers the insane blend of non-sequiturs ("Do you realize that you're talking to a man who just this morning tried to brush his teeth with a live lobster?"), spontaneous musical numbers (an out-of-nowhere bit that resembles what might result if Neil Diamond wrote a weepy ballad about an injured shark), visual gags (Steve Carell eats a head of lettuce like it's an apple) and huge plot detours that have no basis in logic.

Not that logic means much to anchorman Ron Burgundy - who, like Will Ferrell's other great movie character, "Elf," feels simultaneously real and surreal. Ferrell's crabby, self-involved Burgundy has a little bit of the Wild West in him and a little bit of an old-school, voice-of-god anchorman, such as Dan Rather. He thinks he's the smartest person in any room, although he very much is not, and his only goals are "to have salon-quality hair and read the news." The sequel finds him doing that, in the early 1980s, at a new-fangled 24-hour news station much like CNN.

You've no doubt seen her on the screen in countless films. Now you can see Meryl Streep in person.

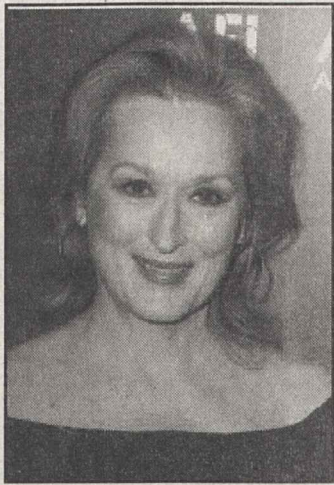

Streep, who has played more than 100 roles and holds the record for the most Academy Award and Golden Globe Award acting nominations, will take the stage at the Tsongas Center at UMass Lowell at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, February 5.

"A Conversation with Meryl Streep" - which will also feature bestselling author Andre Dubus III, a UMass Lowell English faculty member - is the latest event in the Chancellor's Speaker Series. It is co-sponsored by the UMass Lowell English Department's Theatre Arts Program and the College of Fine Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences. Proceeds from the event will benefit student scholarships.

Tickets for this once-in-a-lifetime event are now on sale to the public and are $30 for general admission, $50 for reserved arena seating and $70 for reserved floor seating. Prices do not include applicable fees and there is a limit of eight tickets per person. Tickets will be sold at the Tsongas Center box office, www.tsongascenter.com and 866-722-8780.

In addition to the program for the public and campus, Streep will attend a reception for event sponsors. For more information on sponsorships, see www.uml.edu/streep.

"It's an honor to be chosen to participate in the Chancellor's Speaker Series at UMass Lowell," said Streep. "I'm looking forward to visiting the campus in February to see all that is happening at UMass Lowell, share my experiences with students and present an event for the public to raise funds for student scholarships."

Over her five-decade career, Streep has established herself as prolific actress, with film, stage and TV credits. She is known for her roles in biopics, portraying British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in "Iron Lady," for which Streep won the Oscar for Best Actress, as well as French chef Julia Child in "Julie and Julia" and whistleblower Karen Silkwood in "Silkwood," which garnered her two of her record 17 nominations.

Streep has been recognized with acting's top honors, including three Oscars, eight Golden Globes (also a record), two Emmys, two Screen Actors Guild Awards, a Cannes Film Festival award, two British Academy of Film and Television Arts (BAFTA) awards and five New York Film Critics Circle Awards. She has also been nominated for a Grammy five times and a Tony Award. She was the youngest actor in history to receive the American Film Institute's AFI Life Achievement Award and a Kennedy Center Honor. In 2010, President Barack Obama presented her with the National Medal of Arts.

LISTEN UP

(WAKEFIELD)
"The Wakefield Municipal Gas & Light Department is encouraging its customers to learn all they can about natural gas, especially now when the home heating season is in full swing," notes the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Natural gas is used by more than 6400 residential and commercial customers in the community, according to WMGLD General Manager Pete Dion. While natural gas is very safe when used properly, safety measures should always be in place when using gas appliances, furnaces and heaters.

"To stay safe you should ...
"Look for the blue flame on your gas stove. If pilot lights and burners have a steady, blue flame, they are operating correctly. (Decorative gas fire logs are the only exception. Their flame is usually yellow.)
"Have all gas appliances, furnaces, vents, flues, chimneys and gas lines in your home or business inspected every year or two by qualified industry professionals.

"Keep the areas around all appliances and equipment clean and unblocked to allow for proper airflow.

"Follow manufacturer instructions for the care and use of gas appliances and equipment.

"Make sure there is at least one multipurpose fire extinguisher in your home or place of business..."

If you suspect a problem, leave the premises on foot, call the WMGLD at 781-246-6363 from a neighbor's home, and remain outside until WMGLD crews arrive. WMGLD provides 24-hour emergency service every day of the year. If you sense an emergency, call 911.

MULTIPLE CONDITIONS (WOBURN)

"The Woburn Planning Board, with multiple conditions, recently approved a 10-lot subdivision on Dragon Court off Washington Street in East Woburn," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Attorney Joseph Tarby represented Burlington developer Robert Murray on the proposal for the 10 duplex units on lots ranging in size from 15,000 to 22,000-square-feet.

"According to Tarby, the plans have gone through a number of revisions over the past year to meet the requests of Department of Public Works and the Engineering Department.

"One Dragon Court neighbor, Timothy Swain, spoke against the plans, stating he didn't agree with the drainage plans, adding he felt water was coming from a different direction than the plans showed.

"A second area resident, Chris Owen of Florence Court, said he didn't have a problem with the two-family homes, but he did have a problem with the density of the project..."

"Area residents also listed concerns over traffic, fire safety and the impact on the environment..."

"The Planning Board, on a 6-0 vote, member Claudia Leis Bolgen was not present, approved the plans with the conditions suggested by Tarallo."

A BIT FISHY (WILMINGTON)

"The Super Guppy, the fish-shaped plane that carries cargo for NASA, was at the Manchester (NH) airport ... to pick up the Orion Heat Shield, which was subsequently sent to Kennedy Space Center in Florida," notes the Wilmington "Town Crier."

The shield was a collaboration of Textron, Lockheed Martin, and NASA.

"It's the largest heat shield ever built," said Todd Sullivan, the heat shield senior manager for Lockheed Martin..."

Construction took about a year and a half - it had been at Textron since March.

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA:

What NFL legend and Hall of Famer was an outfielder for the 1919 New York Yankees?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

It took four periods to get it done, but the UMass Lowell River Hawks' (5-3-0, 2-0-0 Hockey East) stretched their early-season winning streak to four games with a 3-2 overtime win over the University of New Hampshire Wildcats (1-5-1, 0-2-0 Hockey East). With 5,976 fans in attendance at the Whittemore Center Arena in Durham, NH, Derek Arnold (Foxboro, Mass.) played the hero, picking up the game-winner at 3:17 of the extra session as the River Hawks swept the Wildcats in the two-game weekend set.

Playing in the second game of a home-and-home series, UMass Lowell got off to a slow start, mustering just three shots in the first period against the host Wildcats. The River Hawks came alive in the second, dominating the period, but it was UNH who got on the scoreboard first as Brett Pesce scored an even strength goal at 10:28. The River Hawks kept the pressure up, peppering Casey DeSmith with 16 shots in the 2nd period. JOSEPH PENDENZA (WILMINGTON, MASS.), the team's leading scorer, finally got one past DeSmith with a power play goal at 17:24 of the period. Just 2:18 later, defenseman Christian Folin (Gottenberg, Sweden) added an even strength goal to give Lowell the 2-1 lead through two.

UNH's defense clamped down again in the third, holding the River Hawks to just four shots in the final period of regulation. With DeSmith off for the extra attacker, Grayson Downing tied the game at 18:47 to send the game to the extra session.

Freshmen Erin Donovan (Lowell, Mass.) and Jackie Solimine (Haverhill, Mass.) placed 25th and 27th among scoring runners, respectively, to lead the UMass Lowell women's cross country team to seventh place at the America East Conference Championship at the Binghamton University Nature Preserve.

UMass Lowell scored 193 points (25, 27, 35, 51, 55 - 56, 62) and edged the University of Maine (194 points) and the host Bearcats (214). New Hampshire won the team championship with 46 points (6, 7, 10, 11, 12 - 16, 17) while Stony Brook was the runner-up with 63 points.

Vermont (77) placed third and was followed by Albany (82), UMB (155) and Hartford (161).

"We are very pleased with our women," said Head Coach Gary Gardner. "I think if everything went perfect, we might've placed a little higher. But considering five of our nine runners are freshmen, we're extremely happy."

Donovan ran the 5K course in 19:04.35 and placed 26th overall while Solimine was close behind in 29th in a time of 19:10.50. Senior Gina Butler (Dracut, Mass.) placed 38th overall (35th among scoring runners) in 19:29.34 while sophomore Kelsey O'Driscoll (New Providence, N.J.) placed 56th/51st in 20:13.71; and JUNIOR KARIE JUDGE (TEWKSBURY, MASS.) 63rd/55th in 20:29.06.

Senior Bridget Meehan (Nashua, N.H.) placed 64th in 20:30.63 and freshman Renee Vigneault (Amesbury, Mass.) 75th in 21:05.91.

"I thought Erin, Jackie and Gina ran very, very well," said Gardner. "I thought Kelsey ran really tough considering this was her second meet of the season."

UMass Lowell wraps its inaugural Division I season Saturday Nov. 23 at the IC4A/ECAC Championship in Riverdale, N.Y.

Need some help with the trivia question? His initials are G.H.

The Stonehill College women's cross country team, ranked 22nd in the U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association (USTFCCA) Division II poll, and ranked first in the East Region, earned its fifth consecutive Northeast-10 Championship dating back to 2009, and 12th in program history, with a dominant 35 point effort on the campus of host school Saint Anselm College. Stonehill's top five finishers all posted personal bests.

For the fourth time this season, senior captain Chelsea Bishop (Suffield, Conn./Suffield) was Stonehill's top finisher in a race, placing third today among 149 participants and clocking in at 18:04, a mere five seconds out of the top spot.

Overall, four Skyhawks finished in the top 10 of today's race, which was instrumental in the team's convincing victory.

Senior captain Chelsea Bishop finished third overall and posted a personal best time of 18:04 in Stonehill's victory today.

Sitting just outside the top ten was junior Brittany Venturo (Taunton, Mass./Coyle & Cassidy), who was the fifth Skyhawk to finish, placing 11th with a time of 18:55. The final two Stonehill participants to earn points in today's race were junior Emily Anderson (Manchester, Conn./Manchester), and ALEXANDRA BUONFIGLIO (LYNNFIELD, MASS./LYNNFIELD), yet another freshman. Anderson placed 22nd in 19:17, and Buonfiglio wrapped up Stonehill's scoring with a 24th place finish, doing so in 19:18.

The North Shore Skating Club announces that RACHEL BOYLAN OF WAKEFIELD has completed Free Style 6, the highest level of the Basic Skills Program set forth by U.S. Figure Skating, the governing body for figure skating in the United States. Skaters who achieve this have taken the first step on the ladder toward qualifying competitions which may eventually lead to representing the U.S. at international events like the Olympics.

Rachel, an eighth grader at St. Joseph's School, has been skating for eight years, and has performed in the North Shore Skating Club's Ice Spectacular for the past six years. She also enjoys soccer, basketball, Girl Scouts and Christian Service. Rachel said, "I enjoy the excitement of having a new goal to pass in order to reach the next level. It gives me an incentive to work harder."

Founded in 1948, the North Shore Skating Club is a non-profit organization offering a well-respected group lesson program that has been recognized yearly for its success by U.S. Figure Skating.

ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: George Halas.

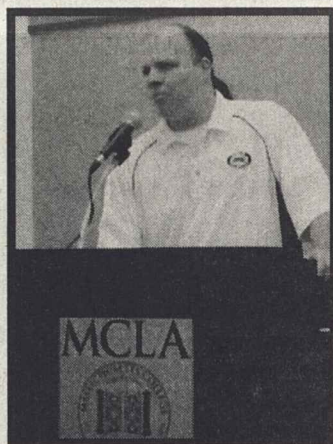

DO YOU KNOW SOMETHING WE DON'T? If you have information about a local athlete that you would like to see appear in this column, please email it to readingchronicle@comcast.net, or mail it to: Paul Feely, Middlesex East Sports, P.O. Box 240, Reading, Ma., 01867, or call Paul at 781-944-2200.

Morrison From S-1

The once-proud program at the school - formerly known as North Adams State College - compiled an 84-22 record from 1986-87 to 1989-90 and had sunk to the bottom of the MASCAC, with 13 losing seasons in the 15 years before Morrison arrived, as the college transitioned to a more academically-oriented institution focusing on fine and performing arts.

Morrison's first couple of years were a struggle, including a 1-24 campaign in 2008-09. The Trailblazers rebounded with nine wins a year later, and with a 17-10 record in 2010-11 posted their first winning season in 12 years. That year, MCLA also qualified for the MASCAC tournament and won a game in the ECAC New England tournament before losing to Brandeis in the semi-finals.

After posting an 8-19 mark the following season, the Trailblazers climbed back over .500 (14-13) last year, and beat traditional MASCAC kingpin Salem State three times on their way to a berth in the conference final, which they lost to Fitchburg State, 80-72.

"I think it's the first time in 23 years we swept the season series with Salem State, and we beat them a third time in the conference tournament," said Morrison. "It was a good season."

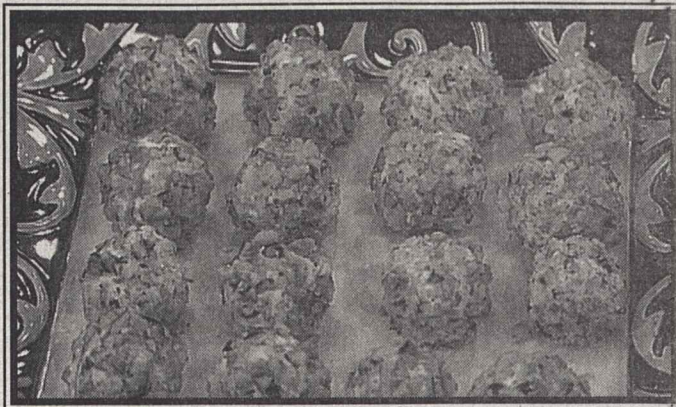

That Jamie Morrison is a basketball coach shouldn't be a surprise to anyone who remembers him during his days at Winchester High. His love of the sport was evident then, and his passion remains as he continues to build the program at MCLA.

Little Cheese Balls

Instead of heading for the grocery aisle for your holiday appetizers (do you really know how long have they been sitting around?), how about treating your guests regally to a simple appetizer containing the finest Italian cheeses, including what Chef Mary Ann Esposito calls the "King of Cheese," parmesano reggiano.

According to Chef Mary Ann, if you have quality ingredients, you've got it made. Once you have tasted the best, freshest cheese, you will never go back to inferior cheese copies, as you will discover when you make these delectable appetizers, made from four of the finest Italian cheeses: ricotta, gorgonzola dolce, fontina and parmesano reggiano.

So take this lesson from the Italian cheese experts, and bring authenticity and superior flavor to your antipasto party or holiday get-together. Nothing could be simpler or more satisfying for both you and your guests. As you will see in the video, simply mix the four cheeses together, chill, roll into balls and finally roll in your favorite chopped nuts.

Ingredients

The freshest cheeses are best!

- 1 cup ricotta cheese
- 2 ounces gorgonzola dolce
- 2 ounces Parmigiano Reggiano, grated
- 2 ounces fontina (genuine Italian fontina is best)
- 4 ounces walnuts or other nuts of choice, finely chopped.

INSTRUCTIONS

- Combine all four cheeses in a bowl; cover and refrigerate for at least 30 minutes, so they will have the proper consistency for rolling.
- Make small balls with your hands and roll in the nuts.

This Week's Sampler: Cascadia

Charming Cascadia is a Craftsman update

Craftsman-style homes, most popular in the early 20th century, have staged a major comeback in recent years, and the Cascadia is a prime example of this phenomenon.

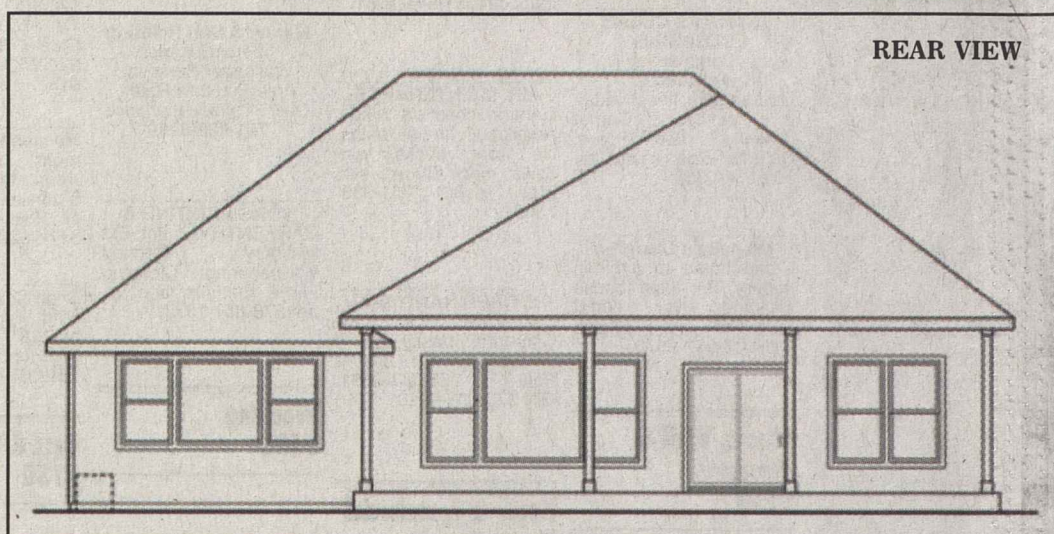

This home is a treat for the eyes. Corbels accent the peaks of all three front-facing gables, and an array of multi-paned windows sparkle across the front. Stone veneer fills the triangular area that fronts one of the gables, while shingles add their texture to the other two. Stone veneer also serves as wainscoting and covers the bold column support that highlights the arched entry porch.

Vaulted ceilings give an expansive feel to many of the rooms, including the foyer, living room, dining room, den, and front bedroom. From the foyer, double doors open into a den or home office on the left, while an arched opening on the right leads to the main bathroom and two bedrooms. The vaulted family living area is ahead and to the left, just past the coat closet.

Windows fill most of the rear wall, creating a naturally bright environment. Sliding glass doors in the dining area offer easy access to a wide covered patio. A fireplace and home entertainment center line one interior wall.

The kitchen is open to the great room, across a counter with a range and oven on one side and a gently curved eating bar on the other. A deep pantry extends under the stairway to the bonus room, which is over the garage. Laundry appliances are nearby, in a pass-through utility room that links with the Cascadia's two-car garage.

A tray ceiling lends a touch of elegance to the owners' suite. Other luxury amenities include a large walk-in closet, double vanity, deep soaking tub, and enclosed toilet/shower.

REAR VIEW

IN THIS CRAFTSMAN UPDATE, vaulted ceilings give an expansive feel to the foyer, living room, dining room, den, and front bedroom. The kitchen is open to the richly windowed living/dining area, across a counter with a range and oven on one side, and a gently curved eating bar on the other. A tray ceiling adds to the elegance of the deluxe owners' suite.
